CONGRESS TEAM HAS BERTH FOR A QUARTER BACK

May Take Ball Away from Roosevelt.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Is congress going to take the ball away from Quarter Back Roosevelt?

This is the all absorbing topic of speculation in official Washington this week-end. It has become so by virtue of the coolness evidenced by senators and representatives, including a majority of the Democrats, toward the President's four point program of new social and economic experimentation and of the insistent demand in congress for tax relief and other encouragement for private enterprise to which Mr. Roosevelt has given a highly qualified and grudging assent.

The President, when taxed with the inconsistency and protean character of his policies, is fond of depicting himself as the quarter back of the Democratic team. Whenever one line of attack is unsuccessful he gives the signal for a different play.

Players Favor Reversing Tactics.

Alarmed by the spread of the new depression and concerned for their political fate in the 1938 congressional elections, unless it be speedily checked, players on the Democratic team are threatening to take the ball away from Mr. Roosevelt and hand it to another quarter back. They are all for reversing the Roosevelt attitude toward business which even the majority of Democrats now ruefully admit is mainly responsible for the business recession.

Even before congress met in extraordinary session it was apparent that the Democrats by an overwhelming majority were ready to repudiate the President's and their own position in writing the punitive tax on undistributed corporation profits into law. They were ready to erase this blunder. The vague consent Mr. Roosevelt gave in his message to the adjustment of tax inequities was but a presidential bowing to the storm. It began to look as if the quarter back had lost the ball.

May Try to Save Face.

So eager are the Democrats now to strike off the chains Mr. Roosevelt, with their help, riveted upon business that the only question is whether the surplus profits tax will be repealed completely or retained in sufficient degree to save the President's face.

Likewise, in regard to the minimum wage and maximum hours of labor bill it is a question whether to junk the measure or pass it in some such face saving form as the President, sensing the increasing Democratic opposition, suggested in his message. This bill is still bottled up in the house rules committee by southern Democratic opponents. A petition to discharge the committee and bring the bill before the house is being circulated, but at the close of the first week only 139 of the 218 signatures required had been obtained. This bill is the victim of the opposition of business and the half hearted support of union labor.

Little TVA's Friendless.

Neither the government reorganization bill nor the measure to establish seven more TVA's stands any chance of being passed at this session. To such a low estate has the latter sunk that Representative Joseph J. Mansfield [D., Tex.], chairman of the house rivers and harbors committee, suspended hearings until some one wished to be heard in its favor. This bill, which would promote the government development of hydro-electric power in competition with the privately owned public utilities, is also suffering from the solicitude the Democrats have suddenly evinced for private enterprise.

The crop control bill, alone of the items on the Roosevelt four point program, is likely to be passed at this session, though probably not in the form desired by the administration. The delay in framing the measure in both houses is due to Democratic doubts of the wisdom of Mr. Roosevelt's aim to reëstablish the federal regimentation of agriculture held unconstitutional by the Supreme court.

Altogether the Democrats in congress are manifesting a disposition to take the ball from Quarter Back Roosevelt. But whether they have a quarter back of their own is something else again.

Wreckage of Airplane Washed Ashore at Gary

An airplane wheel with the tire partly inflated and the attached undercarriage of the plane were washed ashore in Lake Michigan three and one-half miles west of the Porter county line in Gary yesterday. It was found by William Westergreen Jr., 1312 Locust street, Gary. The wheel and undercarriage are green. Since 1930 two planes have been lost in the lake. In 1930 a Waco ship disappeared after its owner started across the lake.

Link French "Throne Heir" to Plot

COUNT OF PARIS AND ROYALISTS OUSTED BY SWISS

Rich 'Hooded Gang' Leader Seized.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 21.—The pursuit of "plotters against the republic" went beyond the French frontier today and resulted in Swiss action against the count of Paris, heir apparent to the long abolished French throne.

Count of Paris.

Swiss federal police "invited" the count to leave Switzerland on the grounds that he was "carrying on political activity." He was discovered holding conferences with a number of French royalists on behalf of his father, the duc de Guise, pretender to the French throne.

This was another of the events that have had France in a state of jitters for weeks—events such as the exposure of the Cagoulards [the hooded ones], discovery of secret arms caches, and charges that the government had paid "secret funds" to extremist organizations.

Nab Industrialist After Raid.

Within France the sensation of the day was the arrest of Jean Dominique Moreau de la Meuse, wealthy textile manufacturer, on charges of "association with malefactors." Secret police raided de la Meuse's apartment and claimed to have found documents linking him with the Cagoulards.

The 57 year old industrialist and engineer was described as one of the arch plotters of the Cagoulards. Surete Nationale [secret police] agents indicated they had information that he superintended the brickwork construction of the Cagoulards' arms depots discovered throughout the city. Such depots also have been found at Caen, Lille, and Toulouse.

The count of Paris is alleged to be in league with the Action Francaise, extreme rightist group in France. He arrived yesterday at Versoix, Switzerland, where he had rented the Chateau Bartholoni. The count, 29 years old, today spoke to a meeting of 700 Action Francaise followers, after which the Swiss police asked him to leave. By 7:30 p. m. the entire party had left.

Expect Duc's Manifesto.

According to the Swiss press, the count planned to give to the press tomorrow a declaration or manifesto to which his party attached much importance. It is recalled that the duc de Guise, now 63 years old and an exile in Belgium, on Jan. 30, 1933, issued a proclamation denouncing the republican form of government and demanding restoration of the French monarchy. The duc de Guise traces his claim through the house of Bourbon-Orleans, whose throne has been in the discard since Napoleon III. was deposed at the end of the Franco-Prussian war.

It was believed that the financial and other difficulties of the French Popular Front government, coupled with the disclosures regarding the Cagoulards, made the royalists consider the time ripe to deliver a new manifesto.

The association of the Versoix meeting with the Cagoulards was not definitly charged, but the original trail which caused the first Cagoulards' arrest led to Switzerland as the result of cartridges falling out of a car going to France from Geneva.

Recruits from Rightist Groups.

The Cagoulards are said to have obtained recruits from François de La Rocque's Croix de Feu [cross of fire] party and its successor, the French Social party, as well as the royalist Action Francaise and the rightist followers of Jacques Doriot. Some French army officers are said to have belonged to the Cagoulards.

Following the discovery of a nation-wide network of arms caches, clandestine radio stations and underground fortresses, officials hinted that

TIME TO ABOUT FACE

Tober Repays Debt and Now He Is a Hero

Tober, a wire haired terrier, put on his doggiest manner when Mr. and Mrs. Chester Linwood looked him over in his kennel at Long Lake two years ago last month. As a result the Linwoods took him to their home at 3058 Ainslie street. They named him Tober in abbreviated recognition of the month, October, in which they had purchased him.

Their new pet proved friendly, playful, and alert, and the Linwoods were mighty kind to him. If, as has been said, dogs wait for a chance to repay their owners' kindness, Tober got his chance. Naturally enough it came last month—Oct. 17.

Thick with Smoke.

Tober was sleeping on his rug. He wakened suddenly. There was a sting of smoke in his nostrils. The Linwood apartment was thick with smoke.

The dog barked, yelped, and whined. He scratched at his masters' bed, and roused them. By this time the place was in flames. Linwood got his wife safely to the street, then dashed back and warned the other tenants, Tober adding his barks to the alarm.

It was a pretty big fire. After everybody was safe, Tober sat contentedly on the outside, growling indignantly only once, and then because the firemen wouldn't let him get near his favorite fire plug.

Heroism Remembered.

Tober's heroic deed was not forgotten. Yesterday Irving V. Brunstrom, an attorney for the Illinois Humane society, 1145 South Wabash avenue, called at the Linwood home.

"I'd like to see Tober," he said.

Linwood called and Tober trotted up. Attorney Brunstrom stooped and looped a band over the dog's head. Appended to it was a medal inscribed:

"For Heroism . . . To Tober from the Illinois Humane society."

YALE STUDENTS HUNT FOR DATE AT 3 A. M. IN GIRLS' DORMITORY

Boston, Mass., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Three Yale students who invaded a girls' dormitory at La Sell Junior college, Auburndale, at 3 a. m. today "looking for a date" were arrested by Newton police after a mad chase through corridors in which women students bombarded the intruders with shoes, books, and desk sets.

One of the invaders, Robert Pittman Humphrey, 20 years old, Kalamazoo, Mich., a sophomore, sought refuge in the closet of a student's bedroom. An instructor and a night watchman stood guard over him until police arrived. The others, William Burney Wilson, 20, of Cape Elizabeth, Portland, Me., a senior, and William Chase Putnam, 19, of Carthage, Mo., a freshman, were captured in a corridor of Blagdon hall. All were charged with drunkenness.

The students, who told police they had attended a party at a Boston hotel after the Harvard-Yale football game, apparently entered the building by picking a night lock. All told Newton police that they had come to La Sell to make a date with a girl, whose name they gave. Principal Guy M. Winslow said the student they mentioned had not been at the college for a year.

ALCOHOLICS ON RELIEF TO GET OUTDOOR CURE

Cleveland, O., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Cuyahoga county relief administrators announced today they would open next Friday a 500 acre farm where they hope to rehabilitate relief clients voluntarily seeking release from alcoholism.

Patients will be subjected to a nine month course in outdoor work, regulated diet and special medical treatment to prepare them for return to jobs.

Miss Belle Greve, county relief bureau director, said more men already have applied for a chance to go to the farm than can be accommodated.

Marriage Dissolved, She Also Reverses Celebration

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 21.—(AP)—A new departure in celebrations was that of a young matron who drove through downtown Indianapolis with two woman friends. Trailing from her automobile were tin cans, old shoes, and streamers. A sign said: "Just Divorced."

Howard Coffin Is Shot Dead with Own Gun

Sea Island, Ga., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Howard E. Coffin, who served the United States as chairman of the world war aircraft production board and sponsored development of the Liberty airplane engine, was found shot to death at his winter home here today. Beside his body was a hunting rifle from which one shot had been fired.

Servants who were in the house during the night told J. D. Compton, general manager of the Sea Island company, of which Coffin was chairman of the board, that they did not hear a shot. Compton had gone to the Coffin home to discuss a proposed hunting trip and found his body. He said the rifle was Coffin's favorite and his death apparently was an accident.

Married Last June.

Mrs. Coffin, the former Gladys Baker, a newspaper writer, was in New York and was expected to arrive here tomorrow when an inquest will be conducted. She and Coffin were married last June 3. Coffin's first wife died here five years ago.

Coffin, who was 64 years old, was born at West Milton, O., a rural community near Dayton. He was graduated in engineering from the University of Michigan in 1902 and entered the automotive industry with which he remained associated until 1930, when he retired as head of the Hudson Motor Car company.

Shortly after entrance of the United States into the world war President Wilson summoned Coffin to head the aircraft board.

Directed 645 Million Program.

Within six weeks after he became head of the aircraft board he had converted the high command to his view, won public confidence, obtained 645 million dollars from congress, and started engineers to work on the Liberty engine.

In 1925, with Paul Henderson, former assistant postmaster general in charge of airmail, he organized National Air Transport, Inc., which eventually became part of United Airlines.

At the time of his death Coffin, in addition to heading the textile company he founded, was chairman of the Young Management corporation and a director of the National Association of Manufacturers.

Trial to Decide If a Religion Can Be Libeled

New York, Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Test of the legality of an indictment charging libel of a religion and, inferentially, all its members, will be a major issue in the trial of Robert Edward Edmondson, publisher of anti-Jewish literature. There has been no similar indictment in this state in recent years.

R. E. Edmondson.

Edmondson, 65 years old, who calls himself "an unsubsidized investment-economist-publicist," was indicted in New York county on June 11, 1936, on two counts of malicious criminal libel against Frances Perkins, secretary of labor; Dean Virginia Crocheron Gildersleeve of Barnard college, and on a third sweeping charge of criminally and maliciously libeling the Jewish religion.

Postponements have shifted the prosecution of the case to Thomas E. Dewey, district attorney elect, who swept into office with Mayor La Guardia, who inspired the original action leading to the indictment of Edmondson.

La Guardia Starts Action.

This came early in June, 1936, when Mayor La Guardia, exercising his prerogative as chief magistrate, issued a summons charging criminal libel against Edmondson. The pamphleteer had published 117 violently anti-Semitic leaflets [one cent to five cents each] in which he charged that Jewish leaders were "plotting to overthrow the governments of the world and set up a universal Jewish government," among other things.

The mayor wrote that the language of the leaflets was strong enough to incite public disorder. In his anti-Jewish campaign Edmondson, who claims to be a former newspaper man, had attacked President Roosevelt, Felix Frankfurter, Gov. Alfred Landon, Senator William E. Borah, Secretary Perkins, Dean Gildersleeve and others prominent in public life. He referred to Mayor La Guardia's parentage.

While preparations were being made to press the mayor's charge, Edmondson lashed back at him as "being a radical Jew himself." Two days later the three indictments were returned against him by the grand jury, the summons proceeding was dropped and Mayor La Guardia stepped out of the case.

Faces Prison Term If Convicted.

Edmondson, facing a possible sentence of three years and a fine if convicted, was released on $2,500 bail and his attorney, John E. Wise Jr., began an immediate fight to be enabled to inspect the minutes of the grand jury which he charged had not been properly selected. The panel, he contended, had been filled "on their own application" by the jurymen, and he charged further that 50 per cent of the panel were Jews. He entered a plea of not guilty in behalf of Edmondson.

CADET, 17, KILLS SELF IN WILD POLICE CHASE

Notes Tell Romance with Girl, 15.

Because a hazel eyed, dark haired little high school girl of 15 had told him an untruth about a baby that isn't coming at all, Warren Sinclair Stanley, 17 years old, son of a well-to-do cosmetics manufacturer, shot and killed himself early yesterday after the stolen car he was driving crashed in Berwyn at the end of a police chase.

In the pockets of the youth, who was a cadet of the Missouri Military academy at Mexico, Mo., the police found a letter in which he expressed fervid affection for the girl and a note in which he acknowledged his belief that he was to become an unmarried father. There was also in the letter a threat to kill himself.

Girl Discloses Untruth.

The girl in the case, Loretta Harynek, 3822 North Kedvale avenue, was interviewed by the state highway police at the Albany Park station yesterday afternoon. It was she who disclosed that Stanley's belief about the baby was based on an untruth.

"I told him I was to become a mother," she said. "It wasn't true. Warren always wanted to be a father, so I told him that to make him feel happy."

Stanley had been in Chicago from Nov. 13 to Nov. 17 [last Wednesday] and had called on Loretta then. They had been sweethearts since grammar school. During his visit the youth had stopped at the home of his mother, Mrs. Estelle Stanley, of 3749 North Pulaski road, who is divorced from his father, Sinclair G. Stanley, whose factory is at 1307 Milwaukee avenue.

Steals Car and Flees.

Returning to the academy he took up his usual routine. Saturday he attended a football game and ate dinner at the school. Then, apparently unable to resist the temptation to see the girl again, he stole a car belonging to Dr. R. S. Williams, a Mexico physician, and set out for Chicago, 330 miles away.

He drove hard but not fast enough to outdistance police information. Early yesterday morning the state highway police at Blue Island received a message from Missouri authorities requesting that a youth in a blue military overcoat, driving the Williams car, which was described, be halted. A warning was issued that the boy was armed and that caution should be used in approaching him.

Car Roars Past Police.

Policemen Walter Healy and William Hogan were patroling Joliet road at Mannheim road when the car, at a speed they estimated at 80 miles an hour, roared past toward Chicago. They took up the pursuit.

At the point where Joliet road runs into Harlem avenue, Berwyn, the policemen drew close and fired at the fugitive. They did not hit him. They missed even the car. North went Stanley in Harlem avenue to Cermak road where, in an effort to shake off pursuit, he turned west. Less than a mile farther on he turned south in Des Plaines avenue, Riverside. This thoroughfare he followed to Burlington avenue, where he turned east again.

Car Crashes Into Tree.

With the policemen hanging on doggedly, he increased speed again as he approached Harlem avenue the second time. And, as he attempted to swing a corner on the icy pavement, his car skidded and crashed against a tree. The two policemen approached cautiously. They heard a shot. Young Stanley had fired a bullet into his head. He died soon afterward in the Berwyn hospital.

Stanley was a student in 1934 and 1935 at Schurz High school, which Loretta Harynek still attends. In the fall of 1935 his father sent Stanley to St. John's Military academy at Delafield, Wis. He was dismissed from that institution early in 1936 and was then sent to the school in Missouri, where his record was good.

Frequent Letters to Girl.

While he was in the military schools he wrote frequently to the girl. She said his messages were all of the same tenor, expressing deep affection for her. The last one he penned—the ...e found in his pocket after he was dead—read:

"Dearest, Darling, Sweetest Girl in the World:

"I love you. I love you. I love you. I cannot stand the strain of being away from you. I am sending you what money I have. I hope you have a good time with it. Do whatever you want to with it. I am going to shoot myself tonight, I think."

"If I do, please forgive me. I think I will. I have always wanted to, and now I am. I really love you, darling. Sweetheart, I love you. You can use this letter as evidence that I am the father of your child if you get one. Use the next page. I love you. That's all. I love you.

"WARREN."

The note on the second page was:

"I hereby certify that I am the father of Loretta Harynek's, 3822 North Kedvale avenue, Chicago, Illinois, child.

"Provided: It is born between the months of June and July, 1937. [Obviously he intended to write 1938.] It happened on October 8, 1937, and November 13, 1937.

"Warren Sinclair Stanley."

Girl Gives Background.

But it was from the statements of the girl that the real clew to the background of the tragedy came. Some of the questions and answers follow:

Q.—How often did he write to you? A.—About once a week.

Q.—What did his letters consist of? A.—Just telling me how much he loved me.

Q.—Did he ever mention in his letters that he was going to shoot himself? A.—Yes, he wrote in about four of his letters that he was going to shoot himself because he was lonesome for my loving.

Q.—Is it true you are about to become a mother? A.—No.

Q.—Did you at any time tell Warren Stanley you were to become a mother? A.—Yes, I did.

Q.—When was it you told him that? A.—Sunday night, Nov. 14, 1937.

Q.—Why did you tell him that? A.—Because Warren Stanley always wanted to have a baby, so I told him that to make him feel happy.

Tells Threat of Suicide.

The girl previously had told investigators that Stanley talked frequently of taking his own life; that he once threatened to jump under a train.

The youth's mother, who was at home when she learned of his death, blamed his sad end on his "having too much."

"These foolish youngsters of today!" she exclaimed. "Warren had everything he wanted. When he was here a week ago on furlough he had the use of his father's car. Whenever I refused Warren anything, he went to his father and got it."

Young Warren had two brothers, Theodore, 15 years old, and Oliver, 12 years old, and a sister, Mrs. Edna Lewis. Theodore is attending a military school in the east. Oliver lives with his mother, and Mrs. Lewis lives on the south side.

CCC to Redeem Cotton Loans Despite Bigger Crop

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Despite the fact that the cotton crop is now estimated at about 18,243,000 bales, or 2,650,000 more than when plans for financing the cotton loans were announced in early September, Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, said today the Commodity Credit corporation would redeem the notes even though "substantially more" than the original estimate of $150,000,000 will be required.

NEW PLANE USES TRICYCLE STYLE LANDING WHEELS

[Chicago Tribune Fr. L. Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 21.—A new type airplane, claimed by its inventors to be the world's safest, was being tested at Croydon airport here today. It is called the "flying tricycle" because it is equipped with tricycle landing gears.

The American manufacturers of the plane call it the Stearman-Hammond "Y." Because of the new type wheels it can land without danger of nosing over and its pilot can take off without touching the controls. It carries two passengers.

Pilots of the Royal Dutch Air Line will practice with the new plane in preparation for handling 30 passenger Douglas ships which will be equipped with the tricycle gear.

CAN A RELIGION BE LIBELED? N. Y. TRIAL TO DECIDE

original plea in General Sessions in a hearing that bordered on the riotous. Attorney Wise contended that Judge Koenig was not qualified to hear motions in the case because he was of the Jewish faith. This contention Judge Koenig promptly overruled, but he agreed to set motion before Judge William Allen.

In subsequent argument, Attorney Wise has contended that no crime was committed by Edmondson, that no evidence of crime was presented to the grand jury, which he calls "illegally prepared and improperly sworn." He has attributed the indictments to "an attempt to choke the freedom of the press."

Calls It Due Process Threat.

"As it stands," Attorney Wise said, "this indictment is no more or less than a threat of deprivation of liberty without due process of law."

After several previous postponements, the district attorney on Nov. 15 was granted a delay till Feb. 7 on his plea that several material witnesses he expected to call were unavailable. Earlier delays had been granted because of Edmondson's illness.

The indictments were returned under section 1340 of article 126 of the penal law and code of criminal procedure of the state of New York, a statute which has been incorporated in the laws of the state for many years. The section reads:

"Libel defined: a malicious publication, by writing, printing, picture, effigy, sign, or otherwise than by mere speech, which exposes any living persons, or the memory of any person deceased, to hatred, contempt, ridicule, or obloquy, or which causes, or tends to cause any person to be shunned or avoided, or which has a tendency to injure any person, corporation, or association of persons, in his or their business or occupation, is a libel."

Persons who have been named as prospective witnesses who might be called by either prosecution or defense include Gov. Herbert Lehman, Mayor La Guardia, Bernard Baruch, Representative Samuel Dickstein, James W. Gerard, Hugh S. Johnson, Henry Morgenthau, Secretary Perkins, Samuel Untermyer, Rabbi Stephen Wise, and some thirty-five others, most of whose names were mentioned in Edmondson's vitriolic pamphlets.

Assails Secretary Perkins.

Edmondson's frequently venomously worded leaflets long have been a source of wrath in New York City's Jewish community. The alleged libel against Secretary Perkins was based on a pamphlet purportedly written and published by Edmondson, which was headlined:

"Perkins-Wilson 'mystery' solved?—Resenting Jewish origin 'plot whispers,' and asserting a Christian ancestry, Roosevelt's Jew-surrounded secretary of labor, ignoring the soviet destruction of 30 million gentiles, says she would be 'proud' to have Jewish ancestry."

The leaflet went on to relate that Edmondson had sent a letter of inquiry to Secretary Perkins, questioning her racial background, and printed her purported reply, denying she had any Jewish antecedents. The leaflet took pains to refer to "the significantly defensive atmosphere of this reply from so important a member of the 'cabal which surrounds the wheeled chair.'"

Other Edmondson pamphlets read:

"'Moe Roosevelt wins—a six point Solomon star medal'"—referring to an honor bestowed on President Roosevelt by New York Jewry.

"U. S. Jewish F. D. R. brain trust."

"Roosevelt's supreme council—a nonpartisan exposure of an 'alien star' oriental revolutionary-power in control of Washington." This leaflet bore a diagram listing "America's invisible governors and their allies—allowing allegiance to the Frankfurter-Brandeis-Baruch-Morgenthau monopoly. "It also contained the key names of Edward A. Filene and Frances Perkins and inquired "When will America again be ruled by Americans for Americans?"

A chance to buy fine old Georgian and Victorian BOOKS for less than their owners paid

Recently arrived from England where we bought them in quiet hamlets from collectors who save books for our visits. A splendid collection published between 1750 and Queen Victoria's death. Bound in English calf, French morocco, Algerian niger. Mellow bindings—lovely with old furniture. They came here duty free and are priced less than when they were published.

Now they are ready for their second century of usefulness. There are classics . . . and oddities . . . and "forgotten" books . . . and big books sold far below their value because they are big. There are Victorian albums—astonishingly tender and personal—of sketches, old color prints and even lacy valentines.

A few of the hundreds are listed here. We hope you will come in and see them all. Because there is only one of each we can't take mail or telephone orders.

PASTOR DEPENDS ON LIFE STORY TO BRING ACQUITTAL

Spends Sunday Writing His Autobiography.

BY MARCIA WINN.
(Picture on back page.)
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsfield, Ill., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—The Rev. C. Ellsworth Newton shared the county jail today with a forger and a vagrant.

Unlike his jail mates, however, the Baptist preacher from Missouri was a busy man. He was writing his life story. Armed with this, he feels he may brave the cross-examination of State's Attorney Merrill Johnston when he ascends the witness stand in Circuit court here tomorrow in the second week of his trial for the murder of Mrs. Maybelle Kelly, his loving parishioner.

In telling his life story yesterday—and his own remarkable version of the night of July 12, when red-haired Mrs. Kelly was slain and tossed into the Mississippi river—the gangling parson spoke some 50,000 words, but he has compressed this autobiography into 4,000.

Calm Is Unruffled.

For the last week he has sat in court as forty-four state witnesses told of the discovery of Mrs. Kelly's body and of the Rev. Mr. Newton's subsequent confession as her slayer. Calm and unmoved, he merely dangled his thin white fingers as that confession was read to the jury.

Explanation of his calm came yesterday when he took the witness stand to give a new and more graphic version.

Instead of hammering Mrs. Kelly to death, as he avowed in his confession, he was kidnaped from the car in which he sat beside her. He was bound and gagged and thrown into a moving car. The last he knew of Mrs. Kelly was her anguished voice: "O, don't. I'm at fault, not he."

As for that confession, he was coerced into it.

Jurors Get Clean Shirts.

The jury was not too upset by this story to spend a quiet Sunday at cards and checkers.

Since the trial opened last Monday, most of them have been washing their own clothes, but today relatives brought fresh apparel. They were not permitted to visit the jury, but learned the men were well and thriving.

This is easily understood, for, having been allowed to pick the foods of their choice at the state's expense, they are eating lavishly and strangely. One juror ordered T-bone steak and chocolate malted milk for breakfast. Another settled his cereal with two pieces of pie. All seem to prefer their steaks for breakfast and their eggs at night.

The weather forecast for today sent shivers up and down many a Chicago spine last night. J. R. Lloyd, the weather man, predicted temperatures as low as 8 above zero for this morning, which would mean the lowest reading of the season. Following the issuance of the report, Harold C. Triechel, manager of the emergency road service department of the Chicago Motor club, warned motorists to protect their cars with anti-freeze solutions. Yesterday cold lake breezes threw high waves against the shore, coating sand and piers with ice.

Seizes Policeman's Gun; Kills Himself in Garage

Peter Chapey, 26 years old, 7451 55th place, Summit, shot and killed himself in the garage in the rear of the Summit police station late Saturday. LISBON, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Lisbon was almost blockaded by floods today after a 24 hour storm raged throughout Portgual. Road and railroad communications were cut.

C. I. O. LEADERS FAIL TO END AUTO 'OUTLAW' STRIKES

Pontiac, Mich., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Rebellious sitdown strikers, refusing to accede to pleas of superiors in the United Automobile Workers of America, a C. I. O. organization, retained possession of the Fisher body plant tonight, now past the 100th hour.

The "wildcat" strike, so termed by both General Motors corporation and C. I. O. heads, persisted while the latter conferred unavailingly in secret and later addressed a closed mass meeting of workers.

Sources close to the impasse said Gov. Frank Murphy, the chief mediator in General Motors strikes of last winter, was keeping in touch with the situation.

Governor Asked to Be Advised.

It was reported the governor, from an undisclosed point, had called Richard Frankenstein, a U. A. W. A. vice president, on the telephone asking that he be "kept advised" of conditions.

Frankenstein, with Homer Martin, president of the union, and other officials engaged in hours-long conferences with representatives of the Pontiac local union tonight. The conferees came here from an earlier meeting held in Detroit.

Settle Strikes in Akron.

Akron, O., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Settlement of the three day sitdown strike which closed all three plants of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company and left 12,000 employés idle, was reached tonight when the Goodyear local of the United Rubber Workers of America accepted a proposal under which work was resumed at midnight.

The proposal recognized seniority of workers, a dispute over which resulted in the sitdown last Thursday night.

Bad Boys Make Good

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 21. — [Special.]—Johnny McGuigan and Bill Reynolds, two public schoolboys, have been given a reprieve for their misdeeds, but their escape was so close that they're not likely to get in the position of needing further aid. Friday afternoon the two were on their way home from school. They were taking the long way because they carried slips to inform their parents of suspension from classes. Heads lowered, the boys trudged homeward. When they saw a small satchel on the sidewalk they looked inside. There they found a thousand dollars in currency. Without the least hesitation they carried it to the police station. It was identified as part of the loot dropped by fleeing bandits after a holdup. Johnny and Bill were given cash rewards. What's more they will return to school as heroes tomorrow. A school assembly is to be held and they are to be given public recognition. The suspension slips have been forgotten.

HIGHWOOD BUILDING BURNS.

ADMIRERS FEEL AMELIA EARHART STILL IS ALIVE

New York, Nov. 21.—[Special.]—A vivid picture of Amelia Earhart alive on an uncharted Pacific island or bobbing about in a tiny fishing boat was presented to more than five hundred admirers of the woman flier today at a tribute at Floyd Bennett field, Brooklyn.

Speakers at the ceremony were firm in their belief that the aviatrix, who disappeared in the Pacific last July 1 in an attempt to circle the globe, was not dead. "Taps," traditional salute to the departed, was not sounded.

The exercises were sponsored by the Women's International Association of Aeronautics. Speakers included Fanny Hurst, the novelist, who represented Mayor F. H. La Guardia; Violet Gentry, vice president of the New York branch of the W. I. A. A.; Clara Adams, who spoke about Capt. Fred Noonan, Amelia's co-pilot, and others.

U.S. ACTS TO SAVE FACE OF PARLEY ON WAR IN CHINA

Davis Proposes to Avoid Admitting Defeat.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BRUSSELS, Nov. 21.—Fighting a gallant rearguard action to cover the rout of Rooseveltian diplomacy, Norman H. Davis, leader of the American delegation, today proposed that the Brussels conference on the undeclared war in China be injected with embalming fluid tomorrow and put on ice for hypothetical better days. Acceptance of this proposal would save the conference from admitting defeat.

In conversations with British delegates and with Paul Spaak, Belgian foreign minister and conference chairman, Davis suggested that the conference be adjourned with the proviso it should be reconvoked on the request of two or more powers.

British Drop Suggestion.

Davis' proposal, it was said, reflected fears of the state department and the White House that the Brussels conference would appear to the public as an undersized fiasco and that European propaganda easily would succeed in placing the blame for this fiasco on the United States.

The British appeared to find the American plan acceptable and have dropped a suggestion of their own that Britain and the United States receive a mandate from the conference to offer their good offices once more to bring about an armistice in the Japanese-Chinese hostilities. The French delegates, who are arriving tomorrow, are expected to give their approval to this more or less face saving device, and the small powers will be glad to get away from Brussels on any conditions.

Chinese Are Bitter.

The Russians and the Chinese, particularly the latter, may give President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Cordell Hull some unpleasant digs, however. The Chinese feel that they have been shamefully let down by the conference and their bitterness is directed almost exclusively against America. Significantly they have nothing but sympathy for Davis and consider that Mr. Roosevelt himself is to blame.

With typical oriental emphasis on the importance of "saving face," they still cannot quite believe that Mr. Roosevelt is not planning to pull out of his hat a scheme for aiding China at the last minute.

CHICAGO WOMAN KILLED 'AS AUTO RUNS OFF ROAD

Mrs. Adelaide Blair, 931 North Leamington avenue, was killed last night in an automobile accident in highway 51, seventeen miles north of Bloomington, Ill. Her husband, S. M. Blair, manager of a Woolworth store, and B. M. Gaither, 2343 Jackson boulevard, were seriously hurt and are in Mennonite hospital, Bloomington. Herbert Meyer, also of Chicago, was shaken up. Blair said his headlights failed and he ran off the pavement.

Julius Goelz, 45 years old, 2325 Adams street, a waiter, was fatally injured last night by an automobile shortly after he had alighted from a street car at Western avenue and 92d street, Evergreen Park. He died in the Little Company of Mary hospital. The driver, Elmer Rust, 22 years old, 2458 Broadway, Blue Island, son of Christ Rust, Worth township relief supervisor, was held for the inquest.

Mrs. Stella Rakowski, 1614 North Honore street, bride of one week, died last night in Indiana, Pa., of injuries suffered in an automobile accident there Thursday. Her mother, Mrs. Stella Ziulek, 1646 Chicago avenue, was killed outright, and her husband, Leo Rakowski, and her aunt, Mrs. Victoria Galbowski of Jersey City, N. J., were critically injured. The Rakowskis, who were married on Nov. 13, were driving Mrs. Galbowski home and Mrs. Ziulek was accompanying them.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 960 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 725 were killed in Chicago, where 20,492 were injured in the same period.

Frances, a Kansas City, Mo., girl, met Dwane there. As a result of their subsequent correspondence, Julia, in Atlanta, Ga., started corresponding with Darrell, in Glendale. Not long after the two brothers proposed, and the sisters accepted.

NAZIS PUT 8 HOUR TIME LIMIT ON DRIVING OF AUTOS

[Copyright: 1937: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—Germany intends to apply to motorists on the new superhighways the railroad rule that an engineer must not be at the throttle continuously for more than a certain number of hours. Rest houses will be built and an ordinance will be issued forbidding motorists to drive more than eight hours without several hours rest.

Highways Commissioner Todt announced the measure as the only means of combating the one serious cause for accidents left on otherwise almost foolproof highways. Head on or crossing collisions are almost impossible as the roads are double tracked and devoid of grade crossing.

Accidents have been rare, but too often serious. Nearly always the driver fell aslep and catapulted into a ditch or into the back of another car. Todt asserts the record shows most of these accidents occurred after more than eight hours of driving.

BORAH FELLS BUS PASSENGER WHEN HE IS ASSAULTED

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Senator William E. Borah grappled with a man he described as either "insanely drunk or crazy" in a Washington bus last night.

The scuffle occurred while the 72 year old Idahoan was on his way from the capitol to his apartment. Borah said a stranger who was "vicious in his remarks" kept annoying him and finally put his hands on his shoulders.

"I said 'Take your hands off me,'" the senator said. "The man put his arm around my neck in such a manner that he could have broken it. I jumped up, grabbed him by the throat and shoved him back. He then started at me in a furious manner. I grabbed him by the throat again and threw my full weight against him and he fell back."

The driver, hearing the commotion, stopped the bus and put the man off, Borah said. He said he would take no action.

3 JAP COLUMNS ATTACK FOE ON 200 MILE FRONT

Shell and Bomb Chinese Line of Defense.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 22 [Monday].—(AP)—A 200 mile wall of Japanese troops advanced toward the newest Chinese defense line west of Shanghai today.

Three columns of Japanese shock troops struck from three points in a driving rain to push Chinese forces farther back toward Nanking, the capital.

On a line stretching from Hangchow bay north to Kiangyin on the Yangtze river, the Japanese onslaught was supported by squadrons of bombing planes and artillery barrages hammering toward twin objectives, Kiangyin and Wusih, farther inland.

Directly south of Lake Taihu a third column stormed Huchow.

Warships Shell Town.

Japanese naval vessels bombarded Lungshan on the Yangtze in an attack believed to presage a determined attempt to smash the protective boom across the river at Kiangyin so that the Japanese fleet could steam up the river to Nanking and other cities.

At Nanking, United States Ambassador Nelson Johnson with a majority of his staf planned to board the gunboat Luzon tomorrow to follow the Chinese government, which was removed farther inland last week. Johnson was expected to leave for Hankow Tuesday.

Second Secretary George Atcheson of Denver, Colo., will remain as Johnson's representative at Nanking. The gunboat Panay was ordered to stay at Nanking to protect interests of Americans.

SEIZE CHINESE VESSELS

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Nov. 22.—[Monday.]—The Japanese conquerors of Shanghai yesterday announced they intend to assume immediate control of Chinese government departments operating within the international settlement and French concession.

The announcement stunned foreigners because most of the Chinese departments operating here include the maritime customs, postal and telegraph administrations and the courts. Hundreds of foreigners, particularly technical experts in executive positions, are employed in these departments.

Japanese Seize Vessels.

Before the declaration was issued Japanese bluejackets appeared on the customs jetty. They seized thirty Chinese government vessels, ranging from launches to large ships belonging to the customs department, harbor police and the conservation bureau. They also took over the harbor firefighting fleet. The vessels were removed down the river to where the Japanese fleet is stationed.

Foreigners, including British and Americans, who are employed in the departments, were expelled from the ships at the point of Japanese rifles and revolvers. The Chinese crews were retained and compelled to operate the ships. L. H. Lawford, the British customs commissioner, protested without avail.

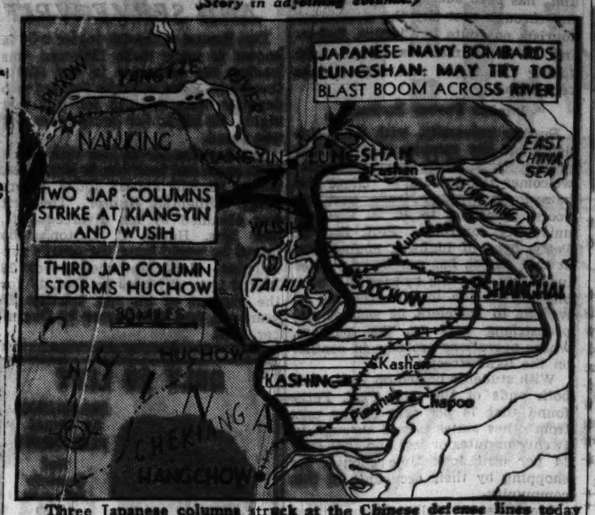
The Japanese ultimatum, demanding suppression of anti-Japanese activities in the International Settlement, was delivered to the French concession. The ultimatum which was handed to officials of the International Settlement Saturday contained five points:

Suppression of anti-Japanese subversive activities; disbanding of organizations including the Kuomintang [Chinese People's party]; prohibition of the posting or circulation of anti-Japanese literature and the banning of anti-Japanese theaters; suppression of anti-Japanese radio broadcasting, and eviction of Chinese government officials who persist in subversive activities.

The Japanese also demanded control of "any other activities regarded as essential by the Japanese army for smooth execution of military operations in this area."

Japanese Renew Advance Toward Nanking

(Story in adjoining column.)



Three Japanese columns struck at the Chinese defense lines today in an effort to push China's troops farther back toward Nanking, the capital. The attacks were supported by Japanese bombing planes and artillery along the 200 mile battle line as indicated by heavy line. The lined portion of the map shows the territory the Japanese have conquered in the Shanghai area.

SPANISH REBELS HOPE TO GAIN BY LOYALIST CRISIS

Claim Barcelona Regime Is Torn by Strife.

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Nov. 21.—(AP)—The long planned Spanish rebel offensive on the Aragon front today was reported to have been delayed in the hope political strife within the loyalist government would provide a more opportune moment to strike.

Many rebel troops have been withdrawn from the mud soaked civil war front in northern Spain.

Caballero Stripped of Power.

Although a government spokesman insisted Premier Juan Negrin's cabinet was "stronger than ever," rebel reports that political trouble threatened at Barcelona were echoed in other government quarters.

Some government supporters said Defense Minister Indalecio Prieto had succeeded in stripping ousted Premier Francisco Largo Caballero of his leadership of the anarcho-syndicalist labor unions.

Rebels Bomb Two Towns.

MADRID, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Spanish rebel airbombers were reported to have scored twice today in raids on two government cities — Alicante, southeastern port, and Monzon, rail junction northwest of Lerida in northeastern Spain. Just before dawn 26 persons were killed and more than 50 injured in Alicante when a lone air raider shook the city with a shower of bombs. A hundred high-power missils were dropped upon Monzon. Damage to property was heavy. The number of casualties was not learned immediately.

SENATE COMMITTEE DEFIES ROOSEVELT ON CROP BILL COSTS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—The senate agriculture committee late tonight, in an unusual Sunday session, defied President Roosevelt by refusing to hold the proposed farm benefits program within the financial limits recommended by the President. The bill will be introduced in the senate tomorrow.

The committee voted to write into the farm bill "blanket authorization" for financing the new farm program, leaving the problem of finding the money up to the house.

Howard R. Tolley, agricultural adjustment administrator, had told the committee that Mr. Roosevelt expected the cost of the farm benefits program would be held within the 500 million dollar soil conservation appropriation. It is estimated the cost may run as high as 750 millions.

Earlier in the day a subcommittee of the house agriculture committee had approved a program of compulsory marketing for wheat. The senate committee agreed on control of marketing and acreage for the five major crops—corn, cotton, wheat, tobacco, and rice.

New Jersey Boy, 15, Kills Father for Beating Mother

Keyport, N. J., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Robert Miller, 15 years old, shot and killed his father, Robert Miller, 41, late tonight in Raritan township when the father came home drunk and beat his wife Marie. Another son, John, 14, witnessed the shooting. Robert was taken into custody.

STRIVE TO CUT TRAFIC HAZARDS AT LAFAYETTE

Bypass on U. S. 52 Hailed as Safety Measure.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—The heavily traveled highway U. S. 52, on the main route between Chicago and Indianapolis, passes through this community of 33,000, creating a trafic and safety problem that is typical for small cities throughout America. Here, the Indiana highway commission will have this problem whipped next month unless a group of local merchants—in the manner of small merchants throughout the United States—are able to block the commission's plans.

At present U. S. 52 uses business and residential streets in passing through the city, as do highways through most cities. The Indiana highway commission is completing a by-pass route around the built up area. It is 6.5 miles long and cost $796,834, including two railroad grade separations and a new $223,857 bridge over the Wabash river. It is to be opened to trafic late next month.

Avoids Urban Congestion.

THE TRIBUNE roadster in a survey found that the by-pass will accommodate an open country style of driving, contrasting with the delays and hazards of cross-trafic, turns, stop lights, pedestrians, and parking on the present route through this city. M. R. Keefe, chief engineer of the Indiana highway commission, estimated the by-pass will carry a fast driver around the city safely in seven minutes, contrasted with an average thirty minutes needed to drive through this city.

But if a petition of local merchants were to be successful, only trucks would enjoy the benefits of this new and superior pavement. The objecting groups, headed by gasoline station owners, rooming house proprietors, and lunch counter men, wants through passenger car travel to continue to pass through the business district.

Avoids Taking Sides.

Clare A. Johnson, secretary of the Lafayette Chamber of Commerce, said he didn't want to be involved in the issue. He said there is a difference of opinion among his members as to whether the by-pass will do the town good. He suggested that the by-pass might be marked "U. S. 52 truck route" and the highway through the city "U. S. 52 business route."

J. T. Hallett, trafic engineer of the Indiana highway commission, said the by-pass will be marked simply "U. S. 52." He hasn't received the Lafayette merchant's petition yet. The chamber of commerce of Gary, Ind., has been successful in misguiding through that city the westbound tourists en route to Chicago, following U. S. 12 markers rather than taking the faster and safer Dunes relief road.

Purdue Favors By-Pass.

Purdue university, with 6,100 students on the campus abutting the present U. S. 52 in West Lafayette, welcomes the by-pass to relieve the hazard of through trafic past its doors, according to R. B. Stewart, university controler. Prof. Ben H. Petty, head of highway engineering at that school, has conducted studies indicating that the by-pass will be a blessing to the local merchants as well as to travelers, as well as the pedestrians and to the parkers, whose operations are now in conflict on the local streets.

With students posted on U. S. 52 at both ends of the city, Prof. Petty found that 74 per cent of the cars from other states passed through in twenty minutes or less and that only 14 per cent took time enough for shopping by their occupants in this community.

Lieut. James McDonald, in charge of trafic for the Lafayette police, reported there were 239 accidents involving twenty-seven persons injured and four killed on two and a half miles of U. S. 52 in his jurisdiction last year. He said tourists following the U. S. markers, unfamiliar with the local streets, accounted for a large portion of this heavy toll.

THE TRIBUNE roadster, in one passage through West Lafayette and Lafayette following those markers, found five curves, six turns, two stop signs, four trafic lights, three hills, two railroad grade crossings, two schools, and twenty and thirty miles an hour speed limits—all to be avoided on the by-pass.

A Mother at 12

[Acme Photo.]

Mrs. Willis Hockersmith and her son who weighed seven pounds at birth.

Oak Grove, Ark., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Willis Hockersmith, who is now 19 years old, met his wife, now 12, a few years ago when his grandfather married the girl's mother. The latter has become the step-grandmother and the grandmother-in-law of her own daughter. Now the young Hockersmiths have become parents of a seven pound boy, and the relationship is more tangled than ever.

FIND DON BESTOR IN BOILER ROOM AND SERVE WRIT

Don Bestor, orchestra leader who is known to many radio listeners, was leading his orchestra in the Rialto theater in Joliet when he learned two deputies were waiting for him last night. He hid in the boiler room, but was found.

The deputies served him with a writ of ne exeat and took him to Kankakee, where he will appear today before Judge William R. Hunter. The writ was obtained by his divorced wife, now Mrs. Hattie C. Catton, who feared he would leave the court's jurisdiction. Under an order of Nov. 13 Bestor is to pay $600 by Dec. 13 for the support of his son Bartley, 16 years old, and $1,600 more by December, 1938.

Moving Forward

Marshall Field & Company presents here each day observations and opinions intended to be of interest and value to those it seeks to serve.

WITCHERY IN WEATHER

By CALEB

IN the early 1800's, November 22 was a notable day in London—particularly at Stationer's Hall, headquarters of the Stationer's Company of London.

At a certain hour the doors of this great building would burst open and out would stream porters innumerable, laden with heavy canvas bags and cases of almanacs. For November 22 was Almanac Day and almanacs of all sorts for the ensuing year were issued.

Under flickering candlelight, within a few days, householders all over England would pore over weather predictions for six months hence. Sheep herders would eagerly trace the muddy printing across the page. Gardeners awaited these almanacs. Sailors would read the lunar data and think afresh of the meaning of stars and tides.

These old almanacs were a statistical hash and literary mush for universal consumption. Astrologers would foretell the year's events, battles, deaths, catastrophes, and other equally elusive things in full confidence. In our own country even twenty-five and fifty years ago pharmacy hangers-on would stand beneath the druggist's smoky lamp to decipher the ensuing season's weather predictions as provided by Grampa's Tonic-Tipple Almanac.

Nowadays, weather predicting is not so simple. We have learned more about knowing less. Nowadays, accredited long-range forecasting is a matter of counting ions and measuring the blue variation of the atmosphere—a variation not at all visible to the naked eye.

Fifty-four days from now, specialists say, the weather will be so and so because the ion count today is this or that. In the astrologer's place there have come laboratories, technicians, delicate instruments, sober scientists, scholarly research, and predictions sometimes of surprising accuracy! In short, a kind of modern weather witchery.

As long-range forecasting becomes consistently reliable, it will be very important, and again the public may become agog over almanacs. Brides will know when to have weddings, people will know when to plan vacations, showmen will know when to open fairs, and bears will know when to come out of hibernation. Last but not least, stores will know when to advertise umbrellas and when not to advertise fur coats.

COUNT OF PARIS AND ROYALISTS OUSTED BY SWISS

"Heir to Throne" Linked to French Plot.

evidence indicated the Cagoulards' major purpose was to crush communist strength, an important part of the Popular Front regime. By provoking communist retaliation, it was said, the secret group hoped to obtain official bans on all communist leagues.

The beginning of France's present difficulties may be traced back to early in 1934, when Serge Stavisky, the notorious gigolo, card sharp, master swindler, and friend of cabinet ministers, shook the nation with his pawnshop bankruptcy, which became a national scandal.

Chautemps Again Premier.

By a queer freak of fate, Camille Chautemps, the same man who now is premier and fighting the present prospect of civil war, was premier when the Stavisky scandal broke.

Extreme right factions seized upon the Stavisky scandal to open war against the moderate leftists in power, and the Chautemps cabinet resigned while mobs rioted in the streets.

A few days later the memorable riots of Feb. 4, 1934, took place, in which 19 persons were killed. Those deaths never have been forgotten nor forgiven by the members of the right and left factions.

After the resignation of the Chautemps government there followed a long succession of cabinet crises. Premier followed premier, none being able to remain in power long enough to stabilize conditions.

Finally the venerable Gaston Doumergue, retired former president, was drafted to form a government to save France from civil war.

Extremes Gain Over Moderates.

In October of 1934 the French electorate was given an opportunity to voice its opinion. The extreme right and left parties both gained, at the expense of the moderate center factions. The Doumergue government lasted until late in 1934, when it was forced to resign in the face of riots in all parts of the country.

It was during this period that private political armies began to gain strength. De La Roque first came into prominence as head of the rightist Croix de Feu. Other groups included the Action Francaise, the Camelots du Roi [King's Henchmen], the Royalist Students' association, the Jeunesse Patriote [Young Patriots], and the French Solidarity.

The left—communists, Socialists and the left faction of the Radical Socialists—grouped its forces into a phalanx which at first was known as a common front and now as the Popular Front or People's Front.

Make Pact with Soviets.

In April of 1935 there occurred an event which had a great effect on the situation. The Radical Socialist government then in power, alarmed by the remilitarization of the Rhineland and other acts of the German Nazis in defiance of the Versailles peace treaty, negotiated a mutual aid pact with soviet Russia. [The pact was ratified in March, 1936.] The French Fascists raised an outcry of protest against this alliance with their most bitter enemy and violence was intensified.

Faced with the prospect of civil war, the Radical Socialist government ordered the Croix de Feu dissolved in the summer of 1935. The order had little effect in ending the reign of terrorism. In December of 1935 Premier Pierre Laval's Radical Socialist government secured a promise from both the right and left factions that they would abolish their armies.

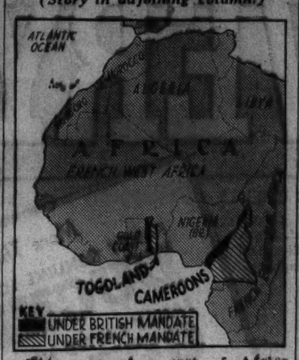
The swing to the left among the people, meanwhile, continued and in the election of April, 1936, the leftist Popular Front won an overwhelming victory.

The rightists, consolidated their forces and De La Roque again emerged as the head of a private army—the Social party.

The first charges from the left that the Fascists leagues were plotting a revolt also came late in 1936.

Possible "Sacrifice"

(Story in adjoining column.)



This map of a part of Africa shows Togoland and the Cameroons, former German colonies, figuring in latest Anglo-German negotiations for a closer "understanding." Solid black portions of the two areas indicate British mandates, and England is reported to be willing to return these sections to Germany.

BRITAIN HOPEFUL OF NAZI DEAL BUT FEARS PUBLIC

BY SAM BREWER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 21.—The trip made last week to Germany by Viscount Halifax, lord president of the council in the British cabinet, was hailed as a full success by informed circles in London tonight. Despite a denial in Berlin, diplomatic quarters here were under the impression that Konstantin von Neurath, German foreign minister, has been invited to make a return visit to London. They took this as meaning that progress was made on an Anglo-German understanding and that more may be hoped for.

[In Berlin Viscount Halifax caused deep disappointment in official Nazi circles when he denied he had invited Von Neurath. Viscount Halifax said any such invitation must come through the British cabinet.]

Seek to Avoid Public Outcry.

Both governments were sticking to a policy of strictest secrecy, but it was understood they had advanced far enough that the next step will be to formulate a definite issue on which they will negotiate.

[The Tribune was informed in Berlin Saturday night that Viscount Halifax had led the Germans to understand that Britain is ready to recognize Germany's right to have colonies, and that England is willing to return the English parts of the Cameroons and Togoland, former German colonies in Africa. In Augsburg Sunday, Reichsfuehrer Hitler told a Nazi rally that the world will have to return Germany's lost colonies.]

Secrecy, it was felt, will help prevent a public outcry on either side that might arise if either nation's people comes to feel that too much is being conceded.

One of two courses is bound to be followed. Either the veil will be lifted in time to get public reaction before the foreign office commits itself, or the veil will not be lifted until the foreign office is committed too definitly for public opinion to do anything about it.

The most important point, however, is that the British government pretty definitly is committed already to help Germany get some colonies somewhere if the Nazis meet its terms.

Viscount Halifax Starts Home.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—Viscount Halifax left Berlin en route home to London today after the last of a series of talks with Nazi leaders looking toward closer Anglo-German relations.

Why does American carry the Most Passengers between Chicago and
New York?

CHICAGO — DETROIT — BUFFALO — NEW YORK

AIRWAY passengers are alert, modern people—the most experienced and exacting travelers in the world. More of them travel American between Chicago and New York than on any other air line.

The reasons are easy to find:

Only American offers you the choice of three routes to New York. The pleasant, low-level Detroit and Buffalo route over magnificent Niagara; the direct, non-stop route—or, the scenic route via Cincinnati and Washington, exclusive to American.

On all three routes American uses giant Douglas Flagships . . . with deep-reclining lounge chairs, spaced to provide plenty of leg room. Cabins are super-quiet . . . steam-heated . . . club-like in comfort.

These mighty ships are piloted by a corps of men whose experience averages 650,000 flying miles per man! Behind the scenes—as thoroughly qualified for their own necessary work—are 1,200 engineers, meteorologists, radio and technical men.

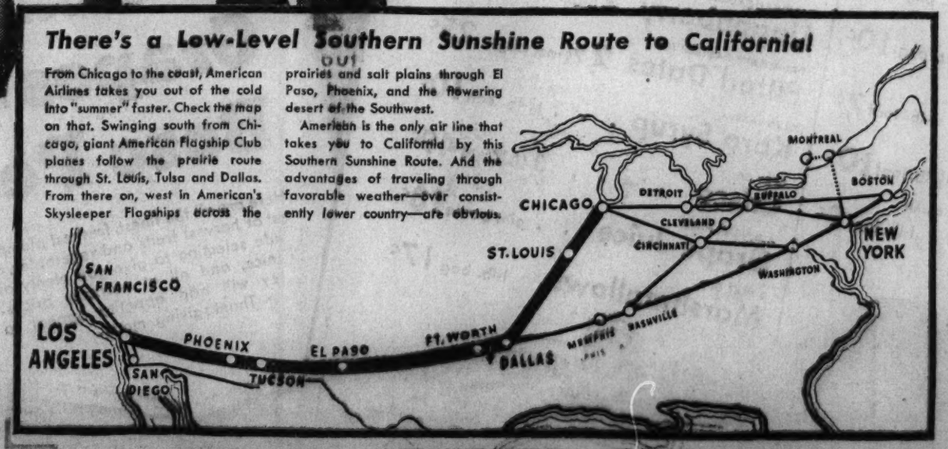
A popular feature on American flights are the delicious, piping-hot meals—served without charge by stewardesses noted for their charm, willingness and ability to please.

These are some of the reasons why you reach your destination hours earlier, relaxed in mind and body—when you go American! Good reasons why American carries the most passengers between Chicago and New York . . . and why more people fly American on all routes than any other air line in the world. Next time . . . go American!

There's a Low-Level Southern Sunshine Route to California!

From Chicago to the coast, American Airlines takes you out of the cold into "summer" faster. Check the map on that. Swinging south from Chicago, giant American Flagship Club planes follow the prairie route through St. Louis, Tulsa and Dallas. From there on, west in American's Skysleeper Flagships across the prairies and salt plains through El Paso, Phoenix, and the flowering desert of the Southwest.

American is the only air line that takes you to California by this Southern Sunshine Route. And the advantages of traveling through favorable weather—over consistently lower country—are obvious.



7 CONVENIENT DAILY FLIGHTS . . . including the non-stop "Eagle" at 12 noon. 6 others through Detroit and Buffalo. . . . Several affording excellent view of Niagara Falls.

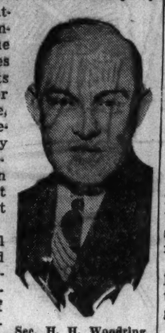
WOODRING URGES STRONGER ARMY FOR U. S. DEFENSE

Points to War, Threats Throughout World.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—In a world made uneasy by actual or threatened war it is imperative that the United States strengthen its armed forces for defensive purposes, Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring declared tonight in his annual report to President Roosevelt.



Sec. H. H. Woodring.

"With actual and threatened conflicts shattering or endangering the peace of at least one-fourth of the people of the world," he said, American citizens naturally are concerned for our own peace and safety. While the war department is not charged with the conduct of foreign affairs this branch of the administration, together with the navy has the responsibility for the defense of the country.

No Thought of Aggression.

"While our nation has no thought of aggression our people very properly expect that our territory shall be protected against the aggression of others."

The secretary said he was happy to report that the army is now more efficient than at any time in its peace time history. He reported modest additions in personnel have been made; material improvements have been effected in all types of equipment; advances in training methods have been accomplished, and the morale and efficiency of the regular army, the national guard and the organized reserves are at a high point.

"Nevertheless," he warned, "in spite of these advances the United States army relatively is weaker, compared with the armies of other great countries than it was a year ago. This is due to the fact that most of the other major powers have increased the size of their armies and have materially improved their equipment.

"In the case of several leading countries many thousand reservists have been placed on prolonged active duty because of actual or threatened hostilities. Increases in armaments have gone forward at an enormous rate. Practically every nation has greatly increased its budget for military purposes."

National Policy Defensive.

Secretary Woodring emphasized that he does not recommend that this country enter the armament race. Our national policy, he recalled, is wholly defensive and it would be undesirable for the United States to maintain at enormous expense a huge standing army or any force larger than is necessary for protection of the nation's frontiers and possessions.

"However, I do think as an insurance against attack we should further strengthen our armed forces," he said. "This, I believe should be done by slightly increasing the number of officers and enlisted men, specifically, by accelerating our program of re-equiping our present army with the latest and best transportation, means of communication and weapons."

On last June 30, he reported there were 12,269 officers and 158,626 enlisted men in the army, an increase of 12,000 men and 200 officers. He recommends that the number of officers be fixed at 14,500 and that number be reached within the next four or five years by annual increases of 500 officers.

Raise Enlisted Men to 162,000.

In the present year the number of enlisted men will be raised to 162,000. He recommended enlisted men be recruited to 165,000 men.

In the air force he reported the army has 1,000 new planes, all less than three years old. In addition, another 1,000 are under order and several hundred serviceable planes, classed as obsolete are on hand. The army goal is 2,320 modern serviceable planes.

Procurement of other military equipment has not been proceeding as rapidly as is desirable, Secretary Woodring said. The army, for example, lacks sufficient anti-aircraft guns to protect strategic points.

The secretary reported substantial progress in new field artillery, motorization, tanks, semi-automatic rifles and machine guns.

Streamlining of Division.

He listed as one of the most important projects under consideration the streamlining of the army division from world war strength of 22,000 men down to 13,500 men. Tests of the experimental division in Texas were satisfactory and showed the new unit has greater mobility and firing power than the old because of mechanization and improved weapons.

He urged increasing the strength of the national guard from 178,051 enlisted men and 13,906 officers on last June 30, to 210,000 officers and enlisted men. He reported that there has been a steady increase in the efficiency and equipment of the national guard.

For the reserves he urged 120,000 officers and 150,000 enlisted men and that at least 30,000 should be given two weeks' training each year.

REAR ADMIRAL HERO OF HOTEL FIRE; HALL BUILT IN 1763 SAVED

(Picture on back page.)

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Rear Admiral David Foote Sellers, commandant of the U. S. Naval academy, was the hero of a fire today that wrecked the fourth floor of historic Carvel hall, hotel landmark.

Admiral D. F. Sellers.

Midshipmen from the academy, sailors, marines, and firemen from six towns battled the wind-fanned blaze that raged two hours before it was brought under control.

The original Carvel hall, built in 1763 by William Paca, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, was saved from the flames, but the top floor of a modern wing was destroyed.

Admiral Sellers saw the fire as he left a nearby church. He rushed into the building and helped several guests escape.

Some 100 guests, mostly naval officers and their wives, escaped but lost most of their clothes and luggage.

Italian Consul Honored at Merchants' Banquet

THE COUNTY HOSPITAL.

The report of the committee on survey of the Cook County hospital is a challenge to the humanity of this community.

Some parts of this document have been published in THE TRIBUNE. They presented facts startling enough, but only a careful reading of the whole will carry to the reader the full force of its message, a force all the greater for restraint and justice of statement. The highly competent and disinterested committee which made the survey was determined to avoid any charge of muckraking or sensationalism. It pilloried no one. It is the facts that were found which are sensational.

The character of the committee vouches for the integrity of the report and the validity of its recommendations. Under the chairmanship of Dr. Irving S. Cutter, dean of Northwestern university medical school and superintendent of Passavant hospital, the committee included Miss Veronica Miller, superintendent of Henrotin hospital; the Rev. John W. Barrett, diocesan director of Catholic hospitals; Dr. A. C. Bachmeyer, director of the University of Chicago clinics; Mr. Asa Bacon, superintendent of the Presbyterian, and Mr. Charles A. Wordell, director of St. Luke's hospital. No stronger committee could have been made up from the standpoint both of character and expert knowledge. Its selection is to the credit of President Clayton Smith and other members of the county board, and especially of Commissioner Bobrytzke, who introduced the resolution authorizing the survey.

It is unfortunately true that there have been previous reports on the hospital conditions, which are of long standing, and by able investigators, without producing any substantial improvements. They have gathered dust in official files, as evidence only of official and public indifference. It is devoutly to be hoped the present board of commissioners will see to it that no such fate befalls the present report.

Space is not available for comment upon the detailed shortcomings of this great hospital, the largest institution of its kind in the world. What is apparent from a reading of the survey is that the indigent sick and injured of the county suffer unnecessarily and often cruelly from the inadequacies of the hospital in both equipment and service. For example, the committee finds that the admitting practices are "grossly crude, approaching the inhumane." "The waiting rooms are overcrowded, so that patients have to remain standing for long periods of time waiting for interviews." Any one who has been ill will know what that means. "More prompt and humane attention should be given to the handling of acutely ill patients brought in by police ambulances." Orderly service is inadequate, whereas it should be at all times available, day and night. At present the nurses are called upon frequently to help unload patients at certain times of the day. Well qualified resident physicians proficient in diagnosis are badly needed for the admitting rooms in order to avoid wrong diagnosis, wrong assignment of patients to wards, or rejection of patients requiring treatment. Many of the radiators were found out of order. Windows do not fit. Sterilizers were not working properly. Toilets were dirty. Drinking fountains had not been working for years, and there is a chronic and serious shortage of hot water at bath time. "There is a marked lack of essential and adequate equipment for rendering nursing care." The list is too long to print here. "There is an acute shortage of linen in almost every ward of the hospital." We need not say what that means to the comfort and even the safety of patients.

These inadequacies are deplorable and intolerable in such an institution, in such a community as ours. But they are not the most important features of the situation revealed by the survey. They are easy to correct, and we are glad to know that a start on their correction has been made. The committee congratulates the board of commissioners upon securing the services of Mr. Anton Negri to coöperate with the committee and assist in carrying out its recommendations. He has already reduced certain classes of expenses and reorganized some of the nonprofessional units of the hospital. Some of the deficiencies of equipment have been reduced since the survey was made and rehabilitation in material equipment is under way. But the survey points out that the basic need is reorganization to provide capable and adequate management and efficient personnel.

This is not the place to discuss the technical recommendations of the committee, but our readers will want to know how a general and fairly permanent reform of the hospital situation can be brought about. Sensational disclosures from time to time, revealing surveys however expert, valuable recommendations faithfully presented, partial and temporary betterments, the loyal struggle of staf members to cope with inadequate conditions, all these have failed to establish in the Cook County hospital the minimum standards of care for the indigent sick and injured which the conscience of the community would demand. What the Cutter committee believes should be done for permanent reform will be discussed in another editorial.

FRAUD IN FANCY PACKAGES.

The politicians in Washington have shown astonishing talent for misbranding their goods. The stuff comes beautifully packaged and is sold under flossy names which bear little or no relation to the contents. Thus, "The Bill to Regulate Minimum Wages and Maximum Hours" is a fine-sounding title which has the ring of noble purpose. To the unsuspecting customer it sounds as if the heart of the nation is beating overtime for the underprivileged. Call the bill by its right name, A Scheme for the Political Regulation of Wages and Hours, and you aren't so eager to see the bill enacted.

Call it by its right name and—it may be added—you will be one of the relatively few people in America to do so. Newspaper correspondents and newspaper editors, most of whom undoubtedly know better, continue to give the politicians the benefit of their fraudulent packaging. For example, the citizens continue to read about the national recovery act, though competent students agree that the act retarded recovery by encouraging price fixing and restriction of output. The charts show a business upturn dating from the moment the act was invalidated by the Supreme court.

The Wagner labor relations act is another attractive label. The name is intended to suggest that the government is devoting itself to the establishment of peace and justice in all relations between employer and employé. In fact, the law does not apply to millions of wage earners, including most of those who are at the bottom of the pile. Far from promoting justice and peace, the enactment of the law led to a wave of disorderly strikes. The law has been used to set up an irresponsible tyranny which aims to subject industry to John L. Lewis' private armies. It was one of the things for which John Lewis paid half a million dollars.

Or take the soil conservation act. There is a high-sounding phrase, calculated to make every one think the real purpose of the law is to save for posterity one of the nation's great resources. The law, at bottom, is a scheme to buy farmers' votes with the taxpayers' money and at the same time obtain power to dominate every detail of every farmer's operations. The best that can be said of it is that it provides a subsidy to farmers for doing what all good farmers have done in their own interests and without subsidy for generations.

Most of the correspondents in Washington know how deceptively the goods are branded, but go right on using the misleading names as if reporters had no responsibility to give their readers correct impressions. Editors of the news have generally let the false names stand even in the critical first paragraphs of the news items. A public which has been schooled to expect skepticism from newspaper reporters and editors has been let down.

To be sure, commentators in the press and elsewhere have exposed the fraud time and again, but the influence exerted by editorials and public speeches is relatively small. Correspondents and editors who continue to prettify the politicians' purpose by employing their euphemisms may need to be reminded that the news columns go farther than any other agency to fix public opinion. The men who write and edit the news bear a correspondingly heavy responsibility to present it free of special pleading. Measures must be described in terms which do not misrepresent purposes and the means adopted for achieving them.

W. G. N. IN LONDON.

All the world—and that's taking in about as much territory as we know anything about, of which more may be said later—loves a success story if it be fair, honest, and noble. It may be flashing and meteoric, providing it does not go up as the rocket and come down as the stick. It may be slow, plodding, determined, and indomitable.

It may be the story of the genius who may be known even as he shakes his baby rattle or it may be one of the sterling character who never appears quite real or credible to the home town folk. They remember him as they last saw him, standing on the station platform, needing a haircut, but with a railroad ticket in one hand and his carpetbag in the other. They did not know what life he had planned for himself with the stars of the winter sky for a chart as he drove the kine up the frozen lane into the barn for his spinster aunt to milk.

Our success story is journalistic. We take the reader to the foggy old town of London, where many a glory has been inherited but some has been self-acquired. It is of the latter that we sing. One requires a jump from Canada to the mother metropolis, introducing him who is now Lord Beaverbrook, publisher of the London Express.

Beaverbrook is now almost a king maker. He's almost, but his fame cannot rest upon that because the king to whom he was attached is now not one. We can't blame the noble publisher for that. It is not precisely to our point that Beaverbrook is, despite the fact that he backed the wrong horse, a great influence in the empire. It is rather that having plugged steadfastly at his job he has of late attached to the Express a phrase familiar to TRIBUNE readers, viz.: The World's Greatest Newspaper, which proves that he has read one and has noted its trademark. This may be regarded as a meteoric success story. The other is of the plodding kind. The London Times also at last regards itself as having arrived.

The Times is a truly remarkable example of perseverance triumphing over obstacles. There is nobody now living who can remember that the Times, which reported the battle of Waterloo, carried the news of it in Wellington's report on the inside page, with a first page filled with classified ads. The English never did like to be carried off their feet. The Times now also, possibly annoyed by the bounding Beaverbrook, advertises itself as the World's Greatest Newspaper.

This field seems to be getting a bit overcrowded, even for so large a territory as all the world. The flaw, if any, in the success stories is that of filching. The Express and the Times borrow their distinction without the enterprise to earn it. W. G. N. in Chicago has been W. G. N. for a generation or more and probably must nly accept it as a compliment that these small town newspapers overseas think the title is a good one and know that not many of their readers will daily have the opportunity to make the comparisons.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U.S. Pat. Office

THERE IS A FIERCE LOYALTY expressed in the Newberry library's town histories, which we shall tell you about today. Each author wants you to understand that his community is the richest in tradition and by far the most enterprising in all the land; that you could possibly enjoy living anywhere else is beyond his comprehension. Few writers produce more than one town history, for most of the books are written by native sons or daughters whose interest in the town itself overshadows any concern the author may have in either history or literature. Some tell you quite candidly in their preface that they have recorded nothing which is untrue, but that they have left many truths unsaid lest they offend descendants of the town's pioneers. One author adds, somewhat belligerently, that he will forget his dignity and divulge some embarrassing details which have been too long soft-pedaled should any one wish to make anything of things he does tell.

Writing town histories was a popular literary pursuit in the second half of the last century. The library shelves are rich in works on eastern towns and cities; the west, if not so well represented in individual books on its towns, has a wealth of information of the towns in its county and state histories. There are no fewer than 24 works on Salem, Mass., some of them in several volumes. Plymouth's history, too, has been told and retold. Chicago books are better known but no more interesting than those of other Illinois cities. Charles Balance, who wrote the history of Peoria in 1870, began with a poem glorifying the city. Painstakingly he traced Peoria's history from the time the first white man, Father Marquette, visited the site in 1673. From conflicting documents the historian took his facts: one gentleman he quotes solemnly avers that he saw Indians burn down Fort Clark, predecessor of the city, in 1818; another is quite as positive that he watched the burning in 1819. Of this, the historian is positive: seven Americans founded the present community in 1819.

SOUTH SHORE RESIDENTS tell weird bird stories. Now comes the woman who awakened the other morning to discover that a pigeon had flown in the window and perched for a nap upon her chest. Almost every morning for a week last spring a robin came in one young couple's bedroom, seized the lace curtain in its beak, and tried to fly away to make a nest of it. When it would eventually fly away, it would give the owners a most reproachful look. The M. B. Bays found two carrier pigeons on their window ledge and called officials and organizations to ask what to do with the two banded pigeons visiting them. It always sounded like abandoned pigeons on the telephone, and the hosts gave up. They fed the birds for days; finally got rid of them by constantly taking them in the front window and putting them out the back. The last time the pigeons didn't return.

YES, WE HAVE SCURVY!

THIS chat has nothing to do with theory. It is intended to set forth facts explaining the need of vitamin C. Methods have been devised by means of which we can measure the proportion of this important element in the blood. There is thus provided a positive plan of determining whether the patient lacks this substance, has enough, or an overplus.

From the time of Capt. James Cook, who conquered scurvy on his voyage to the South Seas, physicians have known the signs of the malady—sore mouth, bleeding gums, indigestion, and emaciation. What we have failed to understand is that there may be a slight vitamin C shortage—not sufficient to present serious symptoms. For instance, it long has been recognized that in those who have suffered tissue damage, healing is delayed if they have omitted citrus fruits or fresh vegetables.

Here is an illustration. Suppose—as a result of a surgical operation—a considerable area of the body is called on to undergo repairs. In consequence, the man or woman usually is placed upon a restricted diet, consisting perhaps of milk, cream, eggs, butter, and toast. In cases of this sort convalescence will be greatly prolonged unless vitamin C is added. Surgeons are learning, therefore, that it is necessary to supply a more generous fare or to feed ascorbic acid.

Likewise many peptic ulcer victims who are obliged to follow a typical starvation diet are extending the period of treatment unless some vitamin C is added. A recent examination of twenty patients who had been under gastric ulcer management disclosed that the blood contained but one-fifth of the required quantity. For the most part, all those on the Sippy diet are likely to receive too little of this element. What happens if they are given ascorbic acid? Large doses can be administered without difficulty and the blood will return to its proper level with a somewhat increased rate of recovery. In other words, they are capable of absorbing the vitamin in a normal manner. There seems to be no substantial reason why tomato or orange juice should not be fed in connection with the ulcer régime. Thus it may be entirely possible to furnish vitamins from natural sources.

The same effect was achieved with surgical patients and those who had received severe injuries following automobile accidents. Because the nourishment for a week or more was of the most fragmentary sort, ascorbic acid was demanded.

In addition, a great many people will develop a sore mouth, a sore tongue, even ulcers within the oral cavity, without realizing that the source is dietary. Recourse is had to mouth washes, gargles, cauterization, and numerous other procedures without avail. Sometimes a diagnosis of Vincent's angina is made. Despite everything that is done, these individuals rarely improve unless some one hits on the cause—namely, scurvy.

Within the last few months correspondents have complained of this very situation, each writer indicating that inadvertently he had neglected fruits and vegetables. Several, however, had found the cure—one had begun to take tomato juice; another had resumed his daily ration of orange juice—whereupon the symptoms disappeared.

All of this goes to show that there are many phases of food deficiency—not only of C but of B and D—that are not striking enough to occasion obvious illness. The body is, nevertheless, below par. Appetite cannot be relied upon, inasmuch as no one of these persons had a craving for fresh fruits and vegetables. Again, the emphasis is placed on a balanced diet as a health safeguard.

IRON BLACKENS TEETH.

M. P. writes:

1. Is it advisable to wear a shoulder brace to help correct round shoulders?
2. Does tonic with iron in it color the teeth?

REPLY.

1. Braces will help round shoulder, but the best treatment is postural exercise. Gymnasium training is advised.
2. Yes. Solutions containing iron should be taken through a glass tube.

OTHER CAUSES LIKELY.

G. H. writes: What is otosclerosis? Is it hereditary? I am 19. Am I too young to have it?

REPLY.

Otosclerosis is a term used to describe the deposit of extra bony material in the middle ear. It is thought to be hereditary. You are not too young to have it, but I would wager that you do not. If your hearing is failing, look for other causes first.

STIFF KNEE.

M. D. M. writes: I suffer from a stiff and painful knee. What can I do for relief?

REPLY.

Heat and a snug bandage will help. Use an elastic stocking made so as to encircle the entire area from a point three or four inches above to the same distance below the joint. Better yet, have your knee examined by a competent physician.

PROBABLY HIVES.

E. D. writes: I am troubled with welts that itch and seem to rise at the least friction on the skin. Is this due to my blood being too rich? Will lemon juice help any?

REPLY.

The condition of your blood does not cause the welts. You are probably sensitive to some substance and the welts are hives [urticaria].

WEARING OF GIRDLES.

P. W. writes: Do you think it necessary for women of 18 to 25 to wear girdles?

REPLY.

Not necessary, perhaps, but advisable, provided the apparatus does not constrict the diaphragm. The waist and hips must be free to respond to muscular movements.

DEPENDS ON MUSCLE.

L. S. writes: Does a heart murmur mean a rheumatic heart?

REPLY.

Rheumatic fever may affect the heart in such a way as to cause a murmur. Remember, however, that this symptom may not be of much importance just as long as the muscle of the pumping organ is normal.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile.—Members of the Italian air mission touring South America had their first contact with a free press in Chile and didn't know what to make of it. Finally they became angry and wanted to attack the "impudent" newspapers, but friends persuaded them to smile it off with Fascist dignity.

The flying Fascist showmen, who are exhibiting Italian aeronautical progress, were annoyed at the reception given them by the left wing newspapers, La Hora and La Opinion, and the protest resolutions adopted by the syndicated workers of Chile.

One of the protests said that the delegation of ten officers and 37 men commanded by Gen. Ulises Longo, wore "uniforms stained with the blood of innocent civilian victims of Ethiopia and Spain." It called on Chileans to "repudiate" the visit.

Italian friends of the airmen said the latter were astounded that papers were "allowed" to print "such things" about them, and were baffled when it was explained that Chile was a constitutional democracy and has a free press. The aviators were unable to reconcile these "insults" with the overwhelming official hospitality.

For most of the aviators, it transpired, this was their first contact with a free press. They sailed from Italy aboard the steamer Gloria Stella for Peru to exhibit the latest types of military aircraft at the Pan-American aeronautical conference in Lima.

As the government of President General Oscar R. Benavides in Peru is equivalent to a dictatorship, involving complete control of the press, it was reserved for the Chilean newspapers to reveal to the visitors that everybody does not agree with Premier Mussolini on the merits of Fascism.

Apart from this embarrassing hitch, the touring mission had great success. For ten days they furnished daily spectacles to Chileans, making acrobatic flights over the capital in their Fiat military pursuit planes. A single exhibition at Los Cerrillos airport attracted 150,000 spectators.

American, British, and even German airplane importers were shocked by the enthusiasm created in South American military circles over the performance of the Italian planes. They expressed the fear that the popularity of the Longo mission may mean that the majority of impending orders will be switched to Rome.

The Peruvian air force already is well stocked with Italian planes. It is reported to be considering additional purchases on the strength of the Italian demonstrations at the Lima conference. The arrival of the aviators at Valparaiso synchronized with a $2,000,000 Chilean order for Italian planes.

The mission made a spectacular flight to Argentina across the Andes from Chile. It was timed to impress the Argentine military air force holding war games at the trans-Andean capital of Mendoza, just across the Chilean frontier. The Gloria Stella, with two dozen show planes aboard, will go to Buenos Aires via the Magellan straits.

After that the Italians will move up the Atlantic coast via Uruguay and Brazil, expecting to get more orders for planes before leaving for home.

THE TAX ON SAVINGS.

Chicago, Nov. 18.—Now that the tax on undistributed corporation profits is being generally discredited, it might be well to remind the public of the original passage of this tax.

Mr. Roosevelt wanted the maximum impost to be 45 per cent, or almost double the amount finally fixed by congress. Even the rubber stamp congress could not quite stomach this, and its refusal to go all the way with the President was one of the first signs of congressional independence under the Roosevelt administration.

Let's put the blame squarely where it belongs. S. S. D.

IN THE FOREST PRESERVE.

Naperville, Ill., Nov. 15.—I looked over the forest preserve in Warrenville the other day. I used to go fishing there and I always thought it one of the most beautiful preserves near Chicago.

Last spring some one steered a group of CCC men into the place. They cut down solid old trees 100 years old and planted saplings in rows. They straightened the winding stream with dredges until it looked like a swamp ditch. Then they tore up and removed the old dam built across the Du Page river in Col. Warren's time in 1850. They dumped 200 loads of sand and gravel at the entrance, put up big signs saying, "This forest park closed on account of construction," and after that they went away in their khaki covered trucks.

If an organization of vandals with time and money had come in to destroy a lovely place they could not have done half the damage because these vagabonds had the law behind them. JOHN KEPLER.

GAY '90S AND THERMAL '30S.

Chicago, Nov. 17.—Back in the gay '90s restless young men got out their fastest horses and went on a sleigh ride party, sometimes traveling twelve miles in one hour. They were the speed demons of that decade. We make a jump of forty-five years to the thermal '30s. The restless youth of today get out their swiftest motor cars and indulge in slay ride parties at eighty miles an hour, killing more victims in one week than were slain during the Cuban campaign of 1898. Yet under our system of government nothing can be done to stop this wholesale massacre. JACK MELONE.

THE AMERICAN MIND.

Newton, Mass., Nov. 11.—Americans of today seem to have no longer minds of their own but a soft pulp molded daily, this and that way, by radio, movie, press; for the most part all commercial ventures for circulation rather than to lift the standards.

What is the pulp saying today? Drink and gambling are good habits [well, they aren't; they are bad habits]; extravagance is better than thrift and the balanced budget [it isn't], and, worst of all, contract has no sacredness: What serves me is right [and that idea is the end of civilization].

Mentally, the United States is in line to be beaten by any hard nation that comes along. The big city press, the movie, the radio ought to take hold of this mass-pulp, otherwise called the American mind, and tell it that physical fitness, stamina, vision alone send a nation forward. Mother Nature sponges from the slate the pulps who make believe the abandoned life is the abundant life. MABELLE GROVES.

THE UNEMPLOYMENT CENSUS.

Chicago, Nov. 16.—The unemployment census card was received in our home this morning. The questions, "Are you an American?" and "How and when did you become an American?" are not asked. The necessity of answering these questions would certainly reduce the number of unemployed, to whom we, as a nation, should be obliged to provide employment. We have no moral or legal responsibility to give employment to aliens.

An American in Europe has his passport stamped that he may not work for a salary in some countries; in other countries he must pay for an identity card in order to remain in the country—and when, and if, he should be without funds, he is turned over to an American consulate to be sent home.

Why should we undertake provision for aliens when we are unable to provide for our own citizens? Eliminate the aliens and see how the ranks of the unemployed are reduced. PHYLLIS SHAW-STEWART.

RELIEF IN CALIFORNIA.

Chicago, Nov. 12.—I am a working woman, 71 years old, and have a niece of 56 on relief in Hollywood. She writes me such harrowing tales of starvation and hardship on what she receives that I am almost distracted, as I cannot help her much. Will some one tell me how much a single person receives a month and do they get it regularly? Also how rent and food costs in Hollywood compare with Los Angeles prices? Who are the ones on federal relief and are there no work projects for men and women in California? WORRIED.

A SO-CALLED SPORT.

Chicago, Nov. 15.—Where are your [red-blooded] sports writers when the roller Derby is on? This race is one of the most thrilling of indoor sports, even more exciting than a six-day bike race. Give the kids a break and they will put on a show you will never forget. Ask the thousands of frenzied fans there Sunday night who saw Wes Aronson, with the aid of Billy Bogash, lap the entire field to win the Derby by one point. GEORGE C. MARSH.

NEW ATTEMPT MADE TO UNSEAT JUSTICE BLACK

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—A new attempt was made today to unseat Justice Hugo L. Black of the United States Supreme court coincident with an article published in the Columbia Law Review in New York stating that the justice "may be attacked by a hostile administration in the future unless he is reappointed to the court after the expiration of his senatorial term."

Albert Levitt, former federal judge in the Virgin Islands, renewed his effort in the form of a proposal that congress move to unseat Justice Black. In a letter to Chairman Henry F. Ashurst [D., Ariz.] of the senate judiciary committee, Levitt requested that he introduce legislation directing the attorney general of the United States to bring quo warranto proceedings against Black.

He also suggested the legislation give the Supreme court jurisdiction to try the case against the justice and appropriate funds needed to conduct the removal proceedings.

In October the court declined to pass upon Black's eligibility at Levitt's request. He charged Black's appointment was unconstitutional.

The Law Review cited the unsuccessful chanllege of Levitt and said the "title to office of a Supreme court justice surely could be questioned in an action of quo warranto brought in the name of the United States by the attorney general in the Supreme court of the District of Columbia.

It discussed the Supreme court retirement act and declared it "clearly is intended to make retirement more attractive to justices . . ." and went on to say that Black was a member of the senate when the bill was passed.

Citing article 10, section 6 of the constitution, it said that "since the purpose is to prevent self-interested voting on the part of legislators in creating offices which they hope to fill there may be good reason to exclude Justice Black."

ESTIMATE LOAD PUT ON CITIZENS BY U. S. HOUSING

Realty Experts Declare Projects Unfair.

Chicago real estate experts yesterday got out their pencils to show why the federal administration is subjecting not only private enterprise but the renting public to unfair competition in turning over 2,414 government dwellings to the Chicago Housing authority to rent at substandard prices.

They referred to the three housing units which the federal housing commission leased on Friday to the Chicago housing authority. These are the Jane Addams houses at Roosevelt road and Loomis avenue, the Trumbull Park houses at 2437 East 106th street, and the Julia Lathrop homes at Diversey parkway and the river.

Rents Start at $20.

Two to five room apartments in these communities, built at a total cost of $13,847,000 to the nation, will rent at from $20 to $33.50 a month. Selection of the first 304 tenants in the Jane Addams dwellings will begin today.

The housing authority will pay the government $107,000 a year for the 2,414 dwellings and pay the city $39,731 a year service charge in lieu of taxes.

These two payments, $107,000 and $39,731, are the basis of complaint by private enterprise. The first is the government's allowance for replacements during the theoretical 60 year life of the buildings. Nothing is allowed for retiring the initial cost of buildings and property. With the private investor, retirement of invested capital usually is covered in the two per cent allowed for depreciation.

$500,000 Would be Tax.

The service sharge of $39,731 is the equivalent of a tax, but if the $13,847,000 property were in private hands it would pay an estimated $500,000 annual tax.

To show the advantage a government unit has over the Chicago property owner, real estate men took as an example federal and privately owned 100 apartment, 250 room buildings costing $250,000 on lots valued at $10,000 each. The price of land and construction would be the same for each, but the estimated cost of maintenance would be $20,050 for the government and $24,000 for the private investor. This is true because the government need not pay for insurance, or water, which is included in the service charge.

But the private owner would pay about $9,000 a year taxes on such a building; the government would pay only $750 service charge, or one-twelfth as much. The investor would also allow $5,000 for depreciation; the government nothing.

Estimate Average Rent.

Figuring that the government would get an average of $8.50 a month a room, which is the unit of cost in real estate planning, statisticians then explained that the building, if 100 per cent occupied, would give the government a gross income of $25,500 and a net income of $4,700.

But, with the private investor's expenses coming to $38,000, the government rental rate would leave him a big deficit. It was said that the least he could charge would be $15 a room for a $45,000 income, which leaves him only 3 per cent a year on a $260,000 investment.

Fred M. Lorish, president of the Chicago Real Estate board, explained how the federal competition affects not only the realty investor, but also increases the tax load of the average renter, who is not eligible to enjoy the federal bounty.

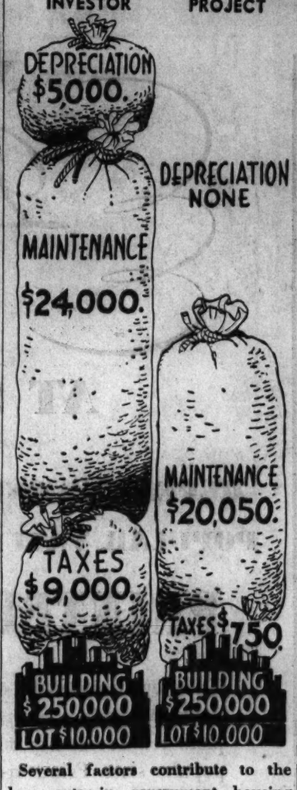
"The government housing authority is renting below cost," he said, "and who is paying the deficit? The general taxpayer. It is undemocratic discrimination for the government to favor a few with below cost rent and make the rest of us pay for it."

700 Hear Danish Envoy Speak at Club's Dinner

Otto Wadsted, minister from Denmark, guest of honor at the Dania society's jubilee festival banquet in the Stevens hotel last night. More than 700 persons heard him praise members of the society for their combined loyalty to this country and faithfulness to Danish traditions. The society, organized in Chicago in 1862, is the oldest Danish organization in this country.

HOUSING COSTS

(Story in adjoining column.)



Several factors contribute to the low rents in government housing projects as compared with similar private projects. Should the cost of lot and building be the same the government project would still have advantages. The government tax item actually is a service charge for utilities. The private maintenance item is higher principally because it must include some of the charges included in the government "taxes" item and because it includes insurance which the government does not carry.

Shoots Husband in Arm After Spat Over His Pay

A domestic spat ended suddenly last night when Mrs. Catherine Etten, 38 years old, 5611 South Maplewood avenue, shot her husband, Arthur, in the left arm. Etten, also 38 years old, is a railroad engineer. Both were arrested by Chicago Lawn police. Mrs. Etten said she and her husband had quarreled because he had allegedly squandered part of his pay.

Wife Gives Burglar Alarm; Husband Fires, Wounds Her

Mrs. Filipa Strano, 50 years old, waked her husband, Gaitano, yesterday and told him a burglar was trying to get into their home at 535 West Elm street. Strano jumped out of bed, seized a revolver and fired. The bullet struck his wife in the right arm.

J. B. PRIESTLEY, as you probably know, is an enthusiast for Arizona, whence he came to lecture at Thorne hall the other evening. Miss Clara Laughlin, who knows travel statistics of America as well as of Europe, remarked to Priestley that she had been astonished to learn that Arizona was so large that one could put New York state, Maine, and Pennsylvania inside its borders.

Mr. Priestley—Memory—Oddment.

"Why don't they?" inquired Mr. Priestley pensively.

THE British essayist, playwright, novelist, and critic, who has three plays on the boards in London at the moment beside a list of past successes, was approached by a charming woman at a late afternoon social gathering in his honor.

"You wrote such a good play, Mr. Priestley," she said. "I shall never forget it. What was it now?"

It reminded him a little of the war memorial in an English city which said, on one side of the shaft, "Names That Will Live Forever," and on the other side, "Lest We Forget."

IT was an opportunity for us to drag out our old favorite about the stock company that was doing an allegorical play of Channing Pollock's. One of the actors advanced to the center of the stage and said impressively, "I am Memory," then, after a moment's hesitation, in an aside to the prompter, "Line, please."

SPEAKING of the literati, a Chicagoan, Samuel M. Steward, visited Gertrude Stein in Paris last summer and while there read the manuscript of her new autobiography, "Everybody's Biography," which will be out early in December. An appropriate title, he says, because nearly everybody is in it. It is a record of her American tour three years ago and many Chicagoans appear in the book. Miss Stein liked particularly, here in Chicago, the curious gray light on the buildings along Michigan avenue at twilight. She was fascinated, too, by the mechanical dancers in a ballroom advertisment on Michigan avenue. There are some hilarious University of Chicago stories in the book, Mr. Steward says.

Thornton Wilder, in whose apartment Miss Stein visited while she and Miss Toklas were in Chicago, has a new play, "Our Town," which Jed Harris expects to produce Christmas week, according to late info.

ANOTHER oddment for the cuff. While she was riding home on the trolley the other evening Dorothy L. Meyer observed a woman sitting there calmly making doll clothes . . . while the world rushed by.

Princeton Club to Be Invited to Eli Bates Dance

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE problem of entertaining for the Princeton Triangle club following its performance at the Civic Opera house Dec. 30 has been solved by the energetic younger members of the board of the Eli Bates Settlement house, for they have taken over the New Boulevard room of the Stevens hotel for a dance after the show.

The debut ball that Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Kirk were to give on the 30th for her daughter, Miss Vesta Culbertson, was canceled when her engagement to Robert F. Carr Jr. was announced recently, and for the first time in all the years that the Trianglers have played in Chicago on their holiday tours there was no debut ball at which they and the debutantes could finish the evening dancing.

Only Younger Crowd Expected to Attend.

The Trianglers are being invited to the Eli Bates benefit, however, and the committee wisely is holding down the price of tickets to $5 a couple, believing that only the younger crowd will want to come to the party, since it will start so late, and that any one who already has bought tickets to the show will already have spent a considerable sum on the evening's entertainment.

Miss Mary Wood, Miss Annie May Henry, and Miss Anne Jay Bryant have been delegated to look after the Trianglers and to introduce them to all of the debutantes and young unmarried women so they will have plenty of dancing partners. Others on the committee for the benefit are Miss Carol Bush, new president of the board; Mrs. Errett Van Nice, Miss Virginia Winston, and Mrs. Robert McKenna.

Miss Wood, who has a brand new little niece, the daughter born Friday at the Presbyterian hospital to Mr. and Mrs. James R. Addington [Sarah Wood], has made tentative plans to entertain for Miss Nancy Poole and Joseph E. Rich at the benefit dance. Miss Poole and Mr. Rich will be married on New Year's day. There will be a party that night also for Miss Henry and Michael Cudahy, who are being married Jan. 11.

Henry Beneke Jr. to Wed Cincinnati Girl Dec. 4.

The date for the marriage of Miss Margaret Ditmars, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Ditmars of Cincinnati, to Henry Beneke Jr., son of the Henry Benekes of Highland Park, has been set for Dec. 4. The ceremony will take place at 8:30 o'clock in the evening in the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Frank Rothier, in Covington, Ky., across the river from Cincinnati.

Edward W. Beneke will be his brother's best man, and Miss Claire Beneke will be the maid of honor. The bride's sister, Mrs. William Anderson of Cambridge, Mass., will be the matron of honor.

Most of the bridegroom's relatives are making plans to attend the wedding. His uncle, Edgar J. Uihlein, will go down with the Benekes, and Mr. Uihlein's daughter, Mrs. Alfred Uihlein, and her husband, Dr. Uihlein, will motor there from New York. The former Paula Uihlein was in Chicago recently for a few days, but has gone to Rochester, Minn., to find a house, for she and Dr. Uihlein and their children will live there during the three years that he will study at the Mayo clinics. Dr. Uihlein landed in New York last week after spending several years studying medicine in Germany.

Mr. Beneke and his bride will go to Florida on their honeymoon. After the first of the year they will be at home in Highland Park, in an attractive apartment above the garage of the Beneke home.

Mrs. Leo Nicolson is planning to go east in January for a visit with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Good morning!

They used to sing an old song with the refrain—"O, I want to be like the leading lady in a regular Broadway show." . . . This picture made me think of it, because the English heroine, a newspaper girl, yerns to go out and get "big news" the way she's seen American lady reporters do in the movies.

She wants to talk back to the boss. She wants to wisecrack with the male reporters, and in the last roundup prove that she can do anything better than anybody else. . . .

[Ribbing us, eh? Yes, I got it.] But I'm not so sure we haven't it coming as I think of some of the strange goings on—and dialog—relevant to the fourth estate that have cluttered up our screens and no doubt percolated abroad. It marks an upgrade in the British sense of humor that our exaggerations were not taken too seriously. . . .

No sooner has Pat Wayne voiced her wish to be like unto her American sisters than she finds herself whirled into such a maelstrom of assorted happenstances as you—nor anybody else—would believe could occur.

A Scotland Yard inspector becomes her big heart interest. . . . A Hollywood movie star [female] is an oft recurring temperamental whirlwind in her life. A beautiful jewel thief [female] puts her on a spot.

The heavy is a New York gangster-jewel thief who hides his nefarious activities behind the mantle of night club ownership. The comedian—our own Nat Pendleton, the gangster's ally, but, O, such a soft-hearted boob, falls for the pretty London film critic and would protect her from naughty mans when most she needs protection.

The story is really pretty asinine and the humor not awfully funny. But the action is fast, the identity of the real jewel thief kept well hidden and Miss Matthews' dancing truly charming. Direction, by her husband, kept the spotlight on her, where, of course, is the place for it. She has delightful enthusiasm—and the most appealing brown eyes!

All of the acting is able, though I found Mr. Mackay—leading man—a bit wooden. Mr. Pendleton scored high with me, which is NOT just being American-ly partisan.

Nothing to kick about in the way of staging and photography.

Summed up—"Gangway" is fun—if you feel foolish.

See you tomorrow.

Polish Opera 'Halka' Pleases Big Audience

BY CECIL SMITH.

The Chicago City Opera company placed its august blessing upon Moniuszko's Polish national opera "Halka" last evening at the Civic Opera house. A big and friendly audience proved that the decision to include this opera in the season's international répertoire was well considered, and indicated its hearty approval of everything about the performance.

The score of "Halka" leans heavily upon the national folk music of Poland. For this reason [as is also the case of Smetana's "The Bartered Bride"] the best music is to be found in the choruses and dances, where the effervescent spontaneity of the folk idiom is not tinged with sophisticated theatricalism. The set pieces—arias, duets, and ensembles—for the principal singers are less happy. Here the naïve structure of the folk music seems unable to carry the burden of highly emotionalized operatic singing, and it often becomes unconvincing.

"Halka" can scarcely attribute its longevity to anything but its music. The libretto tells a bromidic tale of a Polish girl who loved an inconstant young nobleman so much too well that she finally had no choice except to toss herself into a neighboring river.

Aside from the outstandingly competent conducting of young Zdzislaw Skubikowski, the most remarkable feature of the performance was the fresh, confident singing of the chorus Filareci-Dudziarz, who replaced the regular opera chorus and did not leave them a leg to stand on.

Loda Halama, a pretty and vivacious star of the cinema and musical comedy in Poland, danced a mazur and a goralskie with great flair and deservedly stopped the show.

Anna Leskaya, a soprano who sings so well that she ought to sing much better, made a good deal of the woebegone Halka's music. George Czaplicki, the new Polish baritone, was a bit disappointing, letting his voice spread enough in the middle range to obscure the pitch at times, and swallowing some of his high tones uncomfortably. I hope he will soon vindicate the enthusiasm I expressed earlier in the season and now temporarily withdraw.

Walerja Krenz-Glowacka, veteran lyric soprano of the 1934 and 1936 "Halka" performances given here by Polish groups, sang pleasingly, and Valentine Figaniak, Mark Love, and Ralph Niehaus likewise made agreeable contributions to the evening's sum total. The last two singers learned Polish for the occasion. The only inadequate member of the cast was the tenor, Ivan Velik, whose good stage presence scarcely blinded us to his reprehensible vocal method.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

We have every reason to believe that at last a treatment has been found that promotes healing of sick nails even while it can be used to beautify them. We know all about the claims that have been made for various things but we've seen few miracles as yet.

This treatment is being introduced now in a special manicure. It's a de luxe manicure and not a cheap one, but from tests with our own nails and observation of how it's worked for others we're thoroughly sold.

As the manicure is given it's seemingly a simple business. After the nails are groomed in the usual fashion a milky liquid is applied just as a lacker would be. This is something of a protective wax. It's applied beneath the nail tip and over the nail to the very base. A second coat is given, too, and plenty of the protective wax is brushed under the nail tip. Polish is applied over this.

Because of the color of the protective wax, polish must be of the cream variety and cannot be light. A medium shade is about the lightest you can use. And it is brought up over the entire nail.

The protective wax allows the ailing nail to heal. The most stubborn nail with a tendency to crack or split is given a chance to heal within its protective sheath. No polish touches the nail itself. If the polish chips off another coat can be applied right over it.

You are advised not to use a file or orange wood stick beneath the nail tip—just to brush gently so the wax coating there won't be disturbed. Polish has a marvelous luster over this base and the nails look well for a remarkably long time.

This protective wax is not marketed. We should warn you that the polish takes a long time to dry. Your hands are put under a dryer to speed up the process but even at that you should be pretty careful not to bump a nail against anything for an hour or more.

Desperately sick nails just leap to recovery with these manicures.

Jooss Ballet Reaches Goal of Perfection

BY EDWARD BARRY.

One of the maxims under which school children used to squirm [and still do, perhaps] declares that trifles make perfection and that perfection is no trifle. The Jooss ballet, which danced at the Civic Opera house yesterday afternoon for the last time until 1939, offers the idea the strongest sort of support.

For such scrupulously fine performances of "The Bity City" and "A Ball in Old Vienna"—both of them features of the bill—can result only from a passionate care for detail and a willingness to work atrociously hard to banish from a presentation even those tiny imperfections which the average audience would dismiss as of no importance.

With everything planed and polished to fit exactly into its place in the general scheme, the total effect becomes something for which even the noisiest cheers are inadequate.

The subleties of the choreography and the reserved, partrician finish of the ballet's execution kept the whole presentation on a high plateau of art. There is no seeking for a superficial and unimportant realism. Instead, choreographer and performers concern themselves with universals—with an attempt to extract the essence of such well distributed experiences as gaiety, fear, wonder, and the like.

Far graver and more profound than the two pieces mentioned above is "The Green Table," a work which sent the Jooss stock soaring when it was produced by the Danish choreographer at a Paris dance congress some five years ago. "The Green Table" treats of war, relating all of its horrors to the diplomacy which produces it.

Even in dealing with such subjects as violence, bereavement, vice, and the exploitation of the helpless, the Jooss technique is adequate. The underlying ideas are vividly projected by means of an art which remains always art, and which succeeds in stripping away nonessentials and in displaying a subject in its own true form.

The curtain raiser yesterday was "The Seven Heroes," a brightly costumed and humorously intended piece which is based, so the program said, on a fairy tale of the Brothers Grimm. An incomplete view of the work produced only the impression that the two pianos were too loud.

Martha Briggs Sutton, young colored soprano who gave a Kimball hall recital yesterday afternoon, displayed in Selika's aria from "L'Africaine" a hauntingly beautiful pianissimo in her upper voice. Suffering badly from nervousness, the singer did not do herself complete justice in the other departments of her art. There was trouble with pitch, diction, and with the production of the middle voice.

Salzburg Festival Drops Furtwaengler; Toscanini Victory

VIENNA, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Maestro Arturo Toscanini, famous Italian conductor, apparently had won another skirmish today in his long campaign against Nazi ostracism of artists for racial and religious reasons.

Wilhelm Furtwaengler, director of the Prussian State opera, was omitted from the first official program for the 1938 Salzburg festival which became available today. Toscanini had quarreled with Furtwaengler because the German musician conducted at the Nazi controled Bayreuth festival.

INSTALMENT 1.
LOST IN THE FOG.

The fog was getting worse every moment. There was not much daylight left, and in another half hour darkness would be there to give the fog a solid backing. James Elliot drove forward through it, keeping the car at a cautious ten miles an hour. His face was as expressionless as the indeterminate gypsy eyes set about with very thick fair lashes. Very thick fair hair stood up in a thatch all over his head. It was too thick to curl, too thick to lie down, too thick for any sort of control. He kept it short, and brushed it more as a rite than because brushing produced any effect upon it. His large square hands held the wheel.

He was feeling both pleased and elated, since he had almost certainly sold the big car to Col. Pomeroy. That would give him a leg-up with the firm, and it would also annoy Jackson, whose idea of selling a car was to talk the customer's head off. Jackson thought no one could sell cars but himself. Talking wasn't James' line, but he had sold the car, and he felt elated and pleased.

He also felt rather anxious. He didn't want to bring the car in with a dented wing or a scratch on her paint. Extraordinarily easy to get dented and scratched in a fog like this. Driving became steadily more difficult. If it had been like this when he came through Warnley, he would have stopped there and not risked the car, but at Warnley there had been no more than a light general haze. There was nothing for it but to go on. Stalling should be within a mile or two if he hadn't got off the road. A gloomy conviction that he was no longer on the Stalling road had, however, begun to gain ground.

James stopped the car, got out, and prospected. . . . He was certainly on the wrong road. He couldn't see a yard, but this was an enclosed place, overhung with trees by the feel of it. Moisture dropped from them. He had the sense of being shut in. There was a smell of wet woods. But the road from Warnley to Stalling ran over a bare open heath. . . .

He got into the car again and went on driving at ten miles an hour, because any road is bound to arrive somewhere if you follow it far enough. There was hardly any daylight now. The off wing touched something. James braked and got out again, to find his feet on grass and the wing pressed against some smooth barked tree. He had run right off the road on to a grass verge. The off wheels were on grass all right, but it didn't feel like the rough grass of the roadside. He stooped and felt it with his hand. Tame grass, mown grass, rolled grass, with a neat clipped edge—that's what he'd run on to. And the road under his feet now wasn't a road at all. It was somebody's graveled drive.

He backed the car gently and stopped to consider the position. A graveled drive meant a house, and a house meant people. He took an electric torch and set out in what he supposed to be the direction of the house.

Just a ghost of a face which seemed to float on the darkness.

The torch wasn't any good. The beam struck the fog and dazzled back at him. He switched it off, and felt with his foot for the edge of the drive at every step—a very tedious business.

He hadn't gone a dozen yards before he had completely lost his sense of direction. The edge along which he was feeling with his foot stopped suddenly and was no more to be found. He was still on gravel, and guessed that he had come out upon a sweep before the house. If the house was near, it was showing no light. It would be a big house. There ought to be some light showing. The fog was like a blanket, but you would expect some faint seeping through of light. There wasn't any.

He walked with his hands stretched out before him and every sense straining—eyes for anything to break the dark, ears to catch the faintest sound. Some people have another sense. It tells them, without sight or touch, when they are approaching an obstacle. They will stop short for a wall, a tree, or a bank with as much certainty as if they could see it. James possessed this sense. He became suddenly aware that the house was on his left. He could see nothing, but he could feel it there, very large and not very far away.

He turned and went toward this invisible house, walking more quickly than he had done yet. The space in front of him was a large one. He seemed to have been crossing it for a long time, when he stubbed his toe against a step. But time is one of the things which behave oddly in a fog.

The step was the bottom one of six. He guessed at a portico overhead. Arrived at the top, he put on his torch and looked for the bell. At such close quarters the beam came into action again. It showed glimpses of stone, glimpses of a close-growing creeper, all sodden and sunken in the fog. The bell hung to his right, a stirrup handle on a long iron rod. He put his hand to it and pulled, and immediately became aware that the thing was broken. It swung loose as he pulled, while from overhead came a rattle of wire.

He went down the steps again, and very nearly fell over a bicycle which was leaning against them. He had gone up on the left and missed it but crossing to find the bell, he had come down on the opposite side. The balustrade which guarded the steps ended in a stone pillar. The bicycle had been propped against it. It now lay sprawling on the gravel. James, picking it up, discovered it to be a woman's bicycle. He leaned it against the pillar again and went back up the steps. If this woman had got into the house, he supposed he could get in, too. There would be a knocker.

There was a knocker, a plain solid ring. The light of the torch showed it weather-stained and dark. Whoever kept this house had very little pride in it. A dirty doorstep and uncleaned brass are an advertisment of neglect. James gave the house a bad mark. In the moment that it took him to think about this he became aware of something odd about the angle of the knocker. It didn't look at him straight, it slanted at him. He ran the beam of his torch across to the lefthand jamb and found out why. The door stood a black hand's breadth open.

There wasn't any light in the hall. James loathed people who kept their halls dark. It was one of his Aunt Lucy's pet economies and he loathed his Aunt Lucy, at whose house he had spent some of his dreariest holidays.

James shifted the beam of his torch again and found the knocker. He put up his hand to it, but instead of knocking he pushed the door a little wider and took a step forward. The air of the house came out to meet him, mingling with the fog.

James sent the ray of his torch into the space and found it very large and dusty, with a stair going up at the far end. He was in some kind of lobby, but the inner door stood open to the hall and he could see through it to where the beam shifted and slid from floor to paneling, from paneling to the gray stone of a huge, empty fireplace. He came through the inner door and stopped. The traveling beam just grazed the back of a gaunt archaic chair. The place was not unfurnished. It certainly was very bare. His feet were on stone. The stair gloomed in the darkness.

He switched off the torch and waited to see if there was any glow of light from the upper floor. Everything immediately disappeared in a complete black-out. The place might not be there at all for all he could see of it.

He turned on his torch again, and the beam fell on the stair. It made a bright ring in a dim, dusky circle. The edge of the circle touched something which had not been there before. The stair had been empty. It wasn't empty now. He swung the bright ring sideways, and saw it dazzle on a girl's white face just a ghost of a face which seemed to float on the darkness, eyes wide in a stare of terror, mouth open as if to scream.

But she didn't scream. She came running. There wasn't any sound at all. Her face slipped out of the circle of light, and she came running like the wind. She really did run like the wind, because he lost sight of her and could hear nothing, and then she had him by the arm, and she said: "Run!" in a breath which came warm against his cheek.

SAFE ROAD

INSTALMENT XLIII.
THE RIGHTFUL HEIRS.

Vincent's voice cleared and his face became its old, resolute, and cool gambler's countenance. "Get that penknife over there near the ink well . . . it's open. And cut this rope. But don't move your eyes or your gun, see? Take your time. There's no hurry. Where's his gun?"

"Good. We're safe if you don't lose your head. We've got the night before us. Go easy now. No hurry. Just feel for the knife."

She felt for and found it, felt sideways for his rope and inserted the small, sharp blade. It was slow work, like the gnawing of a little mouse. She sighed in nervous agony. Strand slipped from strand . . . then a quick jerk on his part and he was abruptly free. After moving his numb muscles and rubbing his arms he took the gun from her pocket, saw that it was loaded, and sat straight, facing his man.

"I want you to get out of here now, Sally."

"O, no . . . no."

"Go out and wait until I call for you, please. Pronto."

Sally said, "I will sit out there in the hall close to the telephone, and if I hear or see anything that scares me, I'll send for the police."

"O. K.," said Vincent. "Shut this door."

She obeyed him.

She went to the alcove beneath the stairs and sat down beside the telephone there, her gun on her knees. She had no breath nor strength—and a white mist kept traveling across her eyes. She could hear the sound of Vincent's voice, a friendly and earnest voice, pleading . . . reasoning. Of Fred's answers, not a sound. The voice went on and stopped, went on and stopped again. She heard the sound of a chair pushed quickly back, a short exclamation. Silence. And that silence lasted.

She waited. Her heart, which had grown steady, jumped and shook. That watchdog in her subconscious mind, the one that had warned her truthfully that this insolent tramp who had stood waiting for her one evening at the foot of the stairs, had dangerous power over her heart, now painted for her nerves a picture as terrible as truth. Fred had gone. Vincent was dead. It had not been a gunshot . . . it had been a sudden blow like the one that had killed the little honest dog. Vincent now lay across the desk, his head down on his arms. She had been a fool to leave him, half dazed and weak and bewildered! This was the end.

She stood up, not knowing that she was shaken by sobs, and went as though dragged by a cruel invisible hand and opened the door. She saw no one. A curtain came toward her gently, blown by summer night air from an open window. She called faintly, and would have fallen if Vincent himself had not caught her in his arms. He had come to her from the window. . . . She held him back, putting her hands on either side of his thin, colorless face.

"No, Vincent, no."

"What brought you back? O, forget about Fred. He's gone. It's all right. I made him understand. . . . What brought you back?"

"I came back to tell you that I love you dreadfully and that you have got to marry me."

Then she began to laugh, because her own statement sounded so bald and commonplace, as though she had said, "I had forgotten my umbrella."

"Listen to me!" she cried, still forcing him to keep his mouth from hers. "You must let me speak. I don't care about your past or your secrets."

"There's only one I've got to keep from you. That's buried with the poor old man. It's not my own."

"I don't care. I don't care. You can be anything . . . a hobo or a tramp or an ex-rum runner, or just one of the unemployed.

"If you are but a beggar born
And I, said she, the rightful heir,
We two will wed tomorrow morn. . . ."

But that was as far as his patience would allow her young lips to move in any action so superfluous to their desires as speech.

[The End.]

The Housewife

A new sanitary dust mop that costs less than a dollar is a helpful item for the household. At the end of the handle is placed a cylinder made of specially prepared material that is said to be better than paper or cloth for dusting. You run this device over the floor or the walls and then, instead of shaking it, or removing it and washing it you simply pull down a release spring, turn the mop, drawing the material toward you and unwind and tear off the soiled portion.

Each roll of this new mop provides for thirty changes and costs only a dime. So, you refill it whenever you've used one roll.

Mrs. Orson Welles. The Nicolsons are thrilled with the reviews of Mr. Welles' production of "Julius Caesar," which opened in New York on Armistice night, but unless its success induces Mr. Welles to play it longer than planned, Mrs. Nicolson will not see it in January, for Mr. Welles is planning to produce "The Shoemaker's Holiday" in December.

The New York critics all praised the production—it is staged in modern clothes—and were enthusiastic about the acting, especially that of the young producer-actor. He plays the part of Marcus Brutus.

Recall Welles' Boyhood Shakespearan Production

This is not Mr. Welles' first production of Shakespeare's story of revolution and a dictator, for ten years ago when he was 12 years old he produced the play at Todd school in Woodstock, Ill. Mme. Edith Mason was recalling its performance at a luncheon the other day; in that production he took the part of Marc Antony. He was not only the producer and actor but the scenery and costume designed and executor as well, well.

Mr. and Mrs. Welles [Virginia Nicolson] are living now in a charming old house up on the Hudson at Smeeden's Landing, opposite Dobbs Ferry. It is only a fifty minute drive from the Mercury theater in West 41st street, so Mr. Welles goes home each night after the performance.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Lloyd Kelly [Mildred Wetten] are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son, their first child, at the St. Luke's hospital. The baby has been named Arthur Lloyd Kelly. His maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Albert H. Wetten.

Rachmaninoff Will Play in Concert Series.

Sergei Rachmaninoff, the pianist, will be the soloist with the Cincinnati Symphony orchestra tomorrow night at the Auditorium theater in a concert of the history and enjoyment of music series. The concert-lectures are sponsored by the University college of Northwestern university. Twenty-five hundred season subscribers are enrolled.

The Timothy Goodrich Lowrys have cards out for a housewarming on Thanksgiving day from 4 to 7 o'clock. Enclosed with the invitations are "histerical maps" directing one to the Lowrys' "lair" on Pfingston road in Northbrook.

Faded Eyelid One of First Signs of Age

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1937: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

The other day I saw a woman whose reputation as a beauty was undisputed ten years ago, when she was more or less the toast of the town. She is getting on toward 40 now and is skilfully dressed, coiffed, and dieted. She still holds up her place in the distinguished woman group. But like so many women who are getting on in years, this person has faded eyelids, the one thing that gives the lie to all the other features kept up well. Faded is the word for them. And never more faded appearing are they than when you see them set in a face about the rest of whose care there is no doubt. Foolish, too, the way this type of woman will keep on putting coloring on her eyelids and dabbing the lashes, too, with youth-attempting color. On the contrary, the effect is even more ageing when the contrast between coloring and lid skin condition is marked. Better to leave off the coloring until such a time as the eyelids and the surrounding eye skin area are smoothed into youthful line.

It's funny how many women never will go to bed at night without creaming the face and the throat thoroughly, but because their eyes are needed for seeing, probably, the lids get none of the good nourishing cream help. Women with extra fine skin are almost bound to be victims of the eyelid wrinkling unless they learned years ago that it is as imperative to grease and baby this skin as it is to use cream on the rest of the facial skin.

Cardinal Mundelein presided yesterday at the golden jubilee ceremonies of St. Joseph's Catholic church, 48th street and Hermitage avenue. During his address, the cardinal praised the patriotic spirit and religious loyalty of Polish citizens of Chicago. Many world war veterans and several Boy Scout and Girl Scout troops were in the jubilee congregation.

Tailored, Youthfully Styled

WOMAN'S AND MISS' FROCK.

There's youth in every line of this beautifully tailored woolen dress, and it's a style that may be worn by both miss and matron. The principal feature of this frock is the "corseted" waistline. It may be stitched or embroidered. The neckline may be high, with a collar to match the belt. There's a stitched pocket, too, or a V line may be used, with a contrasting scarf looped around the throat. Buttons may or may not be used on the bodice. The sleeves, which are puffed at the shoulders, may be long or short.

The skirt has a multiplicity of plaits right in the front. They are stitched down at the hipline to assure a slim fit.

The original of this model is fashioned of champagne colored woolen, with the stitching and buttons in brown. You may use any color for the dress, and various silks are just as smart as the woolen. It's all a matter of what fabric your wardrobe needs most at this stage in the season.

Style No. 3215 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement. Size 16 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch material for the long sleeved dress.

The embroidery pattern, No. E-11172, is available for 10 cents extra.

A Sure Way to Heal Dry Chapped Rough Skin

There is one sure way that has never failed to heal chapped dry rough skin. The way Doctors, Dentists and Nurses do. They cannot afford to have rough, chapped skin, as it would expose them unnecessarily to dangerous infections. That is why they must keep their skin in good condition.

Your skin gets chapped, dry and red because essential skin elements are destroyed by harsh treatment and bad weather. The way, then, to make it soft and white, is to replace these essential skin elements. To do this, get a jar of Mystic cream from any druggist or department store. Mystic cream supplies everything your skin needs to make it soft, smooth and white.

Apply Mystic cream at night before retiring. It is absorbed almost instantly, Mystic cream is not the least bit sticky or greasy, and it won't stain.

Results are quick and sure no matter how rough and dry your skin is. You can always have soft, smooth, lovely skin, if you get the habit of using Mystic cream.

This simple treatment never fails.

Find Prayers That Are Not Frightening

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1937: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

"He loved his kitty very much," writes a mother. "He loves all animals more than most little boys. A few days ago his kitty was run over. When it didn't move and he wanted to know why, some one told him it had died.

"That night when he said his 'Now I lay me' he stopped when he got to the third line, he wouldn't go on, and began to cry. Since then I can't get him to finish his prayer.

"I think every child should say a little prayer at bedtime and I wonder if you have any suggestions for prayers that are not frightening."

We have lots of suggestions for prayers that leave a little boy or girl with a feeling of peace and comfort and security. Here are several for little children:

Jesus, Gentle Shepherd, hear me,
Bless thy little lamb tonight.

* *

Now I lay me down to rest,
Angels guard my little nest.
Like the wee birds in the tree,
Heavenly Father, care for me.

Now I lay me down to sleep,
I pray thee, Lord, my soul to keep.
God bless my father and mother dear.
And, heavenly Father, draw thou near,
And bless me, too, and help me wake
A happy girl [boy],
For Jesus' sake.

For mother love and father care,
For grandma and friends everywhere,
[or for brothers dear and sisters fair]
For love at home and care each day,
For guidance as we go our way,
Father in heaven, we thank thee.

These prayers are taken from a collection we made from the best contributions sent in by the readers of this column and my own personal selection from other sources.

WEDDINGS

Announcement is made of the marriage Nov. 17 of Mrs. Clara Sherwood Barnhart of the Edgewater Beach hotel to Dr. John A. Bullard of Pasadena, Cal. The wedding took place in Thorndike Memorial chapel at the University of Chicago, the Rev. James M. Stifler officiating. Dr. and Mrs. Bullard will live in California.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1937: By Ely Culbertson.]

Last Friday's question was:

Question 46: Rubber bridge. You are South, not vulnerable. Opponents are vulnerable. The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	1 heart	?

You, South, hold:

♠ A 10 8 ♥ K J 10 8 ♦ J 4 3 ♣ A K 9

What call do you make over East's one heart bid?

Answer: You should pass. The vulnerability conditions, and your particular holding, make a "trap" pass highly strategic. There is no assurance that you can make a game, whereas if opponents go even a little higher, you can double with the justified expectation of at least a 500 point penalty. [For making this trap pass take a two point reward; no demerit for doubling one heart for a take-out, or bidding one no trump. Two points demerit for any other call.]

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question 47: The bidding has been:

South	West	North	East
1 heart	Pass	1 spade	Pass

Of the following rebids by South, which would be the strongest:

[A] Three hearts, [B] three clubs, [C] two no trump?

Question 48: In which bidding sequence, [D] or [E], has South the stronger hand?

	South	West	North	East
[D]	1 spade	1 no tr'p	Pass	Pass
	Double
[E]	1 spade	1 no tr'p	Pass	Pass
	2 diam's

TODAY'S HAND.

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: I often have felt that cards have a sense of humor and occasionally indulge in a quiet chuckle. If so, here is one deck that had a real good laugh.

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

NORTH
♠ Q J 9 3
♥ Q 10 7 5 2
♣ 8 6 3

WEST
♠ A K 7 5 4 2
♥ None
♦ A 4
♣ K J 10 5 4

EAST
♠ 10 8 6
♥ A 9 4
♦ 8 7 5 3 2
♣ A Q

SOUTH
♠ None
♥ K J 8 6 3
♦ K Q J 10 9
♣ 9 7 2

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 heart [A]	1 spade	2 h'rts	2 spades
3 spades [B]	4 spades	Pass	Pass
5 hearts [C]	Pass	Pass	5 spades
6 hearts [C]	Double	Pass	Pass
Redouble [D]	Pass	Pass	Pass

"[A] Just pure devilment. [B] More fun. [C] Considerably ahead for the evening and willing to lose some of it 'just for fun.' [D] 'Let the tail go with the hide.'

"From that point on the cards, aided by poor West, took part in the general festivities.

"West, the victim, opened the spade king. I, the villain, ruffed and nonchalantly tossed out the nine of diamonds. West, with no appreciable hesitation, ducked! The next diamond lead, ruffed in dummy, smothered West's ace. I returned to my hand with a spade ruff and, due to the amazing luck of finding West without a trump, was able to cash my three good diamonds and discard dummy's three losing clubs. After that I had only to concede the heart ace, and stuff my ears with cotton against the opponents' roaring.

"Some fun, eh? Yours truly,

"J. H. D., La Grange, Ill."

Yes, bridge is great sport when you can sneak a nine spot through for a swing of four tricks!

Leopard Skin Velvet Robes Are Sensation

BY RHEA SEEGER.

We give you the "find" of the season in house robes and negligees. Even hardened collectors of such thrilling loot will gasp over the latest arrival. This is timely for Christmas lists, too, but the average shopper will skimp on the Christmas money and buy one for herself. Just once a year, will you or any one else find such an outfit.

It's the famous leopard skin [printed velvet house robe] and it's a complete knockout [we haven't used that for three weeks, you know!]. The robe has long fitted sleeves, a streamline that is a streamline, ending in a nice slithering train. Such a robe is bound to bring out all the sultry temperament you possess.

The color is a tawny golden amber with dark contrasting spots; big game hunters will reach for a gun, so realistic is the pelt, relayed to the soft thick velvet. The sash ends in long silky brown fringe; the cuffs and long collar are made of dusky brown satin; and there are pockets.

It's so exotic, so different that we need some good expressive new adjectives. But the robe isn't all. Wait until you see the eggshell satin lounging pajamas they suggest to complete the ensemble, and the tropic green sandals as the color fillup. Or the glamorous clinging new night-gown of filmy, sheer golden rose amber made with a petal skirt [that means slit to the knees in several places] and the daring scarlet sandals for this combine.

Coppertops can wear this robe with a gown of chartreuse green soft satin or one of the same shade in sheer. For them orange sandals add just the right footnote.

You must see the fringe trimmed crépe robes, equal to the trick of lounging about the house as well as a most sophisticated dinner gown.

If ice cream is your choice for a Thanksgiving dinner dessert you may want to try one of these recipes. They're all very good.

Maple Nut Ice Cream

[Serves 8]

1 cup maple sirup
1½ tablespoons flour
⅝ cup water
2 eggs
¼ teaspoon salt
2 cups coffee cream
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon lemon juice

Heat the maple sirup. Make a paste of flour and water, adding water to flour a little at a time. Add hot sirup to paste, stirring constantly. Cook over hot water for ten minutes or until thickened. Add a little of the mixture to the beaten egg yolks, stir, and combine egg yolks with rest of maple mixture, stirring vigorously. Cook and stir until the mixture is the consistency of thin custard. Cool and add salt and cream. Pour into freezing tray. Freeze, remove to bowl, and add flavorings. Whip with dover beater or electric mixer until light and creamy. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites and return quickly to freezing tray. Freeze quickly, then reduce cold to hold the dessert until serving time.

Fruit Parfait

[Serves 10]

1 cup sugar
¾ cup water
2 egg whites
1 pint whipping cream
2 teaspoons vanilla
¼ teaspoon salt
⅝ cup purée fresh or dried fruit

Combine sugar and water and boil slowly without stirring until mixture threads [236 degrees]. Turn off heat or remove pan from heat for just long enough to whip the egg whites until stiff with the salt. Pour sirup slowly over the mixture, beating constantly until thick. Cool. Whip the cream until thick but not stiff, and fold it with the fruit purée and vanilla into the mixture. Freeze until firm. Any one fruit or combination of fruits may be used to make the purée. Canned or cooked dried fruits may be simply put through a sieve before using.

Butter Crunch Ice Cream

[Serves 8]

⅝ cup crushed butter crunch candy
1¼ cups milk
2 eggs
3 tablespoons sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon gelatin
¼ cup cold milk
1½ cups heavy cream, whipped
½ teaspoon vanilla

Place candy in cloth bag and pound with a hammer to crush it. Scald milk in the top of a double boiler. Beat eggs and add salt and sugar to them. Add a little of the hot milk to the eggs, stirring it in. Then pour the egg mixture into the rest of the milk, stirring constantly. Cook over hot water until the mixture barely coats a clean spoon. In the meantime add gelatin to cold milk and let soak for five minutes. Combine with hot custard and stir until it dissolves. Add crushed candy. Cool and pour into refrigerator tray. Freeze to a mush. Remove to a chilled bowl and whip until light and fluffy. Fold in the cream, which has been whipped until thick but not stiff, and the vanilla. Freeze until firm.

Remember, too, if you frequently make your own ice cream, that there are available many excellent prepared ice cream powders, rennets, and sirups.

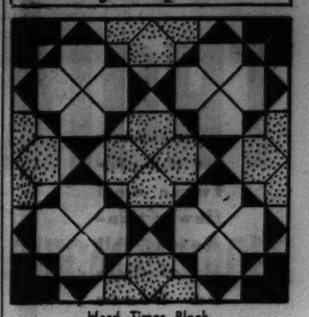
Quilt Created in Georgia Recalls Early Depression



Hard Times Block.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

BY NANCY CABOT.

"Hard Times Block" was pieced in Georgia shortly after the close of the civil war in a soft tan and a delicate violet printed material combined with white. There have been numerous "hard times" blocks, but the pattern illustrated today was made during a period when times were most difficult. The blocks are large, measuring 18 inches square, and are set together to form an all over design. Thirty pieced blocks are required for a coverlet. Bound with a one-half inch bias binding for a border, the overall dimensions of the completed quilt are 90 by 108 inches.

Take Another Step Toward Sainthood for Mother Cabrini

VATICAN CITY, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Frances Xavier Cabrini, founder of the Institute of Missionary Sisters of the Sacred Heart, today moved a step nearer to canonization.

In the presence of Pope Pius XI. a decree was read directing Roman Catholics throughout the world to honor her as one imbued with Christian virtues "to a heroic degree."

The decree praised the nun's "gigantic work" in founding sixty-seven convents, of which thirty-six were in the western hemisphere, and said she exercised "infinite charity, especially toward Italian emigrants who found themselves in the severest poverty in the Americas."

Mother Cabrini, whose parents were members of the Lombard nobility, was born in Italy in 1850 and died in Chicago in 1917.

Another decree formally added a new saint to the church's roster—Salvador de Orta, a Spanish lay Franciscan.

A Small Gift Flacon of Lentheric Perfume with Each Lentheric Purchase a breath-taking perfume & flower pageant

a symphony of fragrances

An enchanting display of loveliness—in the windows and within the store. Today, at Carson's, six State street windows are in bloom for this event, a sight which is worth a special trip down-town to see. Hundreds of lovely flowers—and Lentheric's perfumes are just as exciting as the flowers. If you're a connoisseur of scents, you will appreciate these Lentheric perfumes, both as "out-going" and "in-coming" Christmas gifts. If you are not familiar with these fragrances, let us hint that Lentheric makes those delicate scents you are always trying to place.

Six Lentheric masterpieces in perfume. Lentheric's newest perfume, "Anticipation," is a happy prophecy of delightful experiences yet to crystallize! "Shanghai"—strange city of the Orient. Lentheric interprets the spirit of the Orient in a modernized fragrance that haunts the past. "Tweed"—a sports perfume, reminiscent of heather or country meadows. "Miracle"—charmingly sophisticated, embodying the scent of many fragrant lilies. "Numero 12"—elusive hint of verbena and delicate scent of orange blossoms! Carnation—Lentheric's true-to-the-flower fragrance.

Toiletries, First Floor.

Monsieur Durel Dugas, Lentheric's Paris representative, will be in the Toiletries Section all week. He will help you select perfumes to "go with" your costumes and your personality. He believes that your perfume is an accessory as important as your hat or jewels—and Lentheric has created a fragrance for every type of costume, for every personality.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

Let there be no mistaking the Cardinals' benevolence. Dutch Clark came to Wrigley field yesterday to make his farewell Chicago appearance as a player. The Cardinals, for years Clark's favorite hosts, did all they could to make the occasion a success. They fumbled twice and passed into Bill Shepherd's hands to make it possible for Clark and the Detroit Lions to win, 16 to 7, and tie Green Bay for second place in the National Professional Football league.

One of the fumbles was recovered by Ed Klewicki, Detroit end, for a touchdown early in the first period, giving the Lions a lead they never relinquished. Klewicki ran twenty-three yards for the score. The other miscue set up a fourteen yard placekick by Regis Monahan, Detroit guard, in the second quarter. Shepherd went forty-five yards with an intercepted pass in the third period for the last Lion score.

Pat Makes Amends.

Pat Coffee, the rookie half back from Louisiana State, who has come along to give the Cardinals a reputation for passing, gleaned a modicum of redemption for fumbling the ball on which Klewicki scored by starting the seventy-six yard forward, lateral pass play in the fourth period on which the Chicagoans made their only touchdown.

Coffee passed thirty-one yards to Bill Smith, veteran left end, who had relieved Gaynell Tinsley, and Smith lateraled to Rock Reed, a freshman back and a Louisiana State teammate of Coffee's. Reed went forty-five yards to the goal. Smith added the extra point.

Winter weather, which kept attendance down to 8,576, left the playing field in a slippery condition and running backs on both sides were stopped by inability to cut through the frozen surface.

Dutch Fails to Sparkle.

Consequently Clark's activities were restricted and the greatest quarter back of all time, wearing a pair of kid gloves to protect his hands against the cold, gave only a routine demonstration of his widely publicized skill. Heroics by Clark, or any other member of his team, were unnecessary, however, in view of the Cardinals' generosity. The Lions merely played well enough to protect the lead with which they had been presented, saving themselves for Thursday's important engagement against the league leading Bears at Detroit.

Playing conditions also hampered the Cardinals, who, except for the uncertain footing, would have had another touchdown. Tinsley, who caught two of the five passes completed by the Chicagoans, slipped on the ice on the goal line in the third period just as Dougal Russell's long pass reached him. He attempted to make the catch while falling, but the ball bounded off his hands.

Detroit Defense Holds.

This was the third and last time, except for the seventy-six yard scoring play, that the Cardinals crossed midfield. They reached the Lions' 43 yard line in the second period by intercepting a pass, but immediately lost the ball on a fumble. In the third period they got to the Lions' 47 yard line through Russell's ten yard return of a punt, but gave up the ball on first down on an intercepted pass.

Their net gain by rushing was eighty-one yards, including Reed's forty-five yard touchdown run with Smith's lateral. Five completions out of twenty-two passes gained eighty-eight yards, making a total advance

PLAYERS FIGHT AS GIANTS HALT PACKERS, 10 TO 0

Green Bay Stopped After Seven Victories.

New York, Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Fists flew, two players were disqualified for fighting, Referee Tom Thorpe was pushed around by the contestants and a near-riot ensued at the Polo Grounds today as the New York Giants stopped a seven game Green Bay winning streak with a 10 to 0 victory over the Packers before 38,965 fans.

Tuffy Leemans and Kink Richards of the Giants and Clark Hinkle, Green Bay full back, all limped off the field during the bruising battle. Tarzan White of the Giants, knocked cold by Russ Letlow, Packer guard, in the fourth period slugfest, was carried off. And near the end of the game, Charles [Buckets] Goldenberg, Packer reserve, was knocked out in a scrimmage and carried to the clubhouse on a stretcher.

A field goal by Tillie Manton gave the Giants a 3-0 lead in the second period. In the third quarter Ed Danowski passed to Buster Poole for twenty yards and the only touchdown of the game.

Things Come to Head.

The crushing line play and savage tackling finally culminated in the fourth period battle. It developed after Danowski intercepted a pass by Arnie Herber on the Giant 12. Danowski, however, dropped the ball as he was tackled hard and Milt Gantenbein, Hein, and Danowski went for it. When it was ruled Hein had recovered, thus stopping a Packer march, the fireworks began.

Dennerlein and Letlow started pushing Thorpe and Umpire Savage about. But the arbiters held to their ruling. On the next play Hank Soar crashed through for eight yards. He warned Hinkle for roughness, but on the other side of the field Letlow was getting a roughing by White and the latter was ejected by the officials. As he started for the side lines Letlow ran over. White stopped and swung, but got Letlow's knee in his stomach and went out completely.

Police Help Quell Riot.

Letlow was waved out of the game by the referee and police aided the officials in preventing what promised to be a pitched battle between the rival squads.

In the second period the Giants drove to a field goal after Leemans had returned a Packer punt to midfield. Dankowski passed to Leemans and Walls to move the ball to the Green Bay 22. Danowski went around end for five yards when a receiver wasn't open. On fourth down Manton placekicked twenty-four yards for a 3 to 0 lead.

Near the end of the third period Danowski punted from his 37 and George Sauer took the punt on the Packers' 21. He ran back to the 33, but fumbled and Poole recovered. Soar crashed through for a first down on the 16. A plunge gained a yard

Hustling for Yardage in Pro Football Title Quest

Vernon Huffman (No. 6), former Indana university star, swings around his right end for three yards during yesterday's battle with the Cardinals on a slippery gridiron at Wrigley field. Card tacklers had to eliminate Bill Shepherd (No. 9) and Frank Christensen (No. 2) before they could bring down Huffman. The Lions won, 16 to 7.

Leo Conquers St. George, 6-0, to Win Catholic League Title

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

(Picture on Next Page.)

Johnny Galvin and Leo vs. Willie De Correvont and Austin.

That will be the scenario next Saturday at Soldiers' field when the champions of the City and Catholic leagues meet in the annual interleague battle for Chicago's Own Christmas benefit, sponsored by Mayor Kelly.

Master De Correvont attended to his side of the matter Saturday when he led Austin to its second consecutive City league title by licking Senn, 14 to 6. Master Galvin brought the south siders to their third Catholic league crown in four years and their third interleague game in four years yesterday by scoring the touchdown which whipped St. George of the north section, 6 to 0, in the Catholic league final at the lake front stadium.

He Rates Well, Too.

Galvin, who is ranked as highly in the Catholic league as De Correvont is in the public school company, was as much of a great football player as De Correvont has been touted all of this season. The young man punted smartly with his left foot and threw sharply with his right hand well into the second quarter. In the third period he fielded one of Johnny Leys' punts on his 47 yard line and then ran down the east side line as though he were walking up the middle of State street at 4 a. m. He tried to make it 7 to 0 himself, but his kick was wide.

St. George made a great fight in its third game in seven days. The Evanston boys never were close to a touchdown, barring a fourth quarter pass from Jim McPartland to Larry Salerno, which would have meant a score only for a ruling that Salerno's right foot tapped the out of bounds line at the 49 yard mark. Nevertheless, the north siders stopped nearly every Leo effort, aside from the speedy Galvin's superlative run.

85 Yard Kick, But ——

Jim McPartland kicked off for St. George, and when Leo found the Evanstonians' line difficult Galvin punted to Leys. The south siders proved just as annoying and Leys, with the wind behind him, got away a bouncing punt which traveled eighty-five yards before Galvin got hold of it. This, however, was nullified by a St. George offside penalty.

MINNESOTA BEST, AND UPSETS FEW IN BIG TEN PLAY

Teams More Nearly on Par than in Other Years.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The curtain has fallen and football's Western conference theater is darkened until another year. And as the thousands take their leave of this most popular collegiate sport, there will be none who does not now admit he picked Minnesota to win the conference title.

Ten weeks ago, however, Ohio State was bracketed with Minnesota by many who were not drawn to the Buckeyes by partisanship. Those who played Minnesota on a straight ticket did so more from respect of Purdue and Northwestern than of Indiana, which eventually whipped Ohio State and cost the Buckeyes a share of the 1937 title.

Boilermakers Overrated.

Contrary to popular conception, the Western conference season was singularly free from upsets unless one had been sold completely on Purdue. The Boilermakers were overrated in predictions just as Northwestern suffered in advance estimates for no other reason than that the Wildcats were defending champions.

A touchdown here or there, or even a point after touchdown, and the final standings might have been drastically altered. In 26 Big Ten games eleven were decided by one touchdown; three were decided by one point; one was decided by three points, and there was one tie game.

Big Ten football, considered only on the basis of intra-league competition, more nearly approached equality than it has for several seasons. Minnesota unquestionably was the best eleven. Ohio State was second, and Chicago and Iowa, without doubt, earned last place. But because Minnesota and Ohio State did not approach the standards of other years—Minnesota in 1934 and Ohio State in 1935—Big Ten football failed to maintain its position in national competition.

Minnesota Beaten Twice.

Minnesota was beaten by Nebraska and Notre Dame. Ohio State lost to Southern California. Yet, in defense of Western conference football, let it be added that Illinois tied Notre Dame, Ohio State whipped Texas Christian, Michigan defeated Pennsylvania, and Indiana lost a "might have won" battle to the Cornhuskers.

A survey of Big Ten competition reveals the following:

1. Most important upsets: Illinois' defeat of Northwestern, 6 to 0, and Indiana's 10 to 0 victory over Ohio State which eliminated the Buckeyes from the conference race.

2. Most disheartening defeats: Iowa's loss to Indiana, 3 to 0, after outplaying the Hoosiers by comparison of statistics; Chicago's defeat by Michigan, 13 to 12, after the Maroons had led by two touchdowns for 56 minutes, and Purdue's defeat by Northwestern, 14 to 7, on a fourth period fumble for a touchdown following the interception of a Purdue pass. This mishap occurred only three plays after the Boilermakers had come within a half yard of scoring a touchdown.

3. Best offensive game: Minnesota's defeat of Michigan, 39 to 6, judged on effectiveness of team blocking.

Badgers Most Consistent.

4. Most consistent form: Wisconsin, which won as expected from Chicago and Iowa, tied Purdue, and lost by one touchdown each to Minnesota and Northwestern.

5. Best results on basis of material and schedule: Michigan, for tying Northwestern for fourth place in the final standings, and whose only one sided defeats were by the first and second conference elevens.

6. Most popular results to nonpartisans: Indiana's defeat of Ohio State [the underdog always gets a cheer, especially when it never has

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Boston Bruins still don't know how it feels to get licked or tied in a hocky match. The Blackhawks were anxious to stop the Bruins' winning streak at five straight at the Stadium last night, but 14,000 fans were obliged to watch the Chicagoans come out second best in a 2 to 1 contest.

The entire game, as far as scoring went, was played in a span of little more than seven minutes of the second period.

Milt Schmidt, assisted by Bobby Bauer and Woody Dumart, wiggled out of a scrimmage for a goal in 10:25 of that second period and 73 seconds later Dumart and Schmidt worked past the Hawk defense men for another score, rung up by Dumart.

Brydson Averts Shutout.

The game's other score, the one the Hawks made, was tallied by Glenn Brydson on assists by Earl Seibert and Johnny Gottselig. The time was 17:32 of the second period.

The contest wasn't as rough as some Bruin-Hawk contests of the past. There was one fight but even this had its gentlemanly aspects. Big Bill Hollett sought to slug little Mush March and Seibert took over the fisticuffs in Mush's behalf. The fight wasn't very good, resulting in only minor penalties.

The Hawks sagged into third place as a result of the night's doings, one point behind the Rangers and six points behind the Bruins. They remained three points ahead of the collapsed World Champion Detroit Red Wings, who absorbed a 5 to 0 whipping at the hands of the Toronto Maple Leafs.

In the first period the players managed to do some skating and passing between Referee Campbell's piccolo solos, but the referee seldom hushed his whistle long enough to permit either team to cross the blue line for closeup shots.

Schmidt Slaps Puck In.

The Hawks could have used some of the referee's whistle tooting immediately after the midway point in the second period, in which the Bruins' youthful second line made the Chicagoans look rather futile on defense.

In 10:25 of this second period there was a jostle against the boards behind and somewhat to the Bruins' right of the Hawk cage. Bauer managed to clear the puck from this board-checking to Dumart, who slid the rubber in front of the nets, whereup Schmidt slashed it home.

One minute and 13 seconds after the first goal the Bruins scored again. This time Schmidt rammed between Seibert and Burke, who were sharpening their skates or something at the time. As Schmidt went through he nudged the puck forward. Dumart cut a graceful and rapid arc around Burke, picked up the puck, and whipped it past Karakas faster than we can tell about it.

Hawks Fight Back.

This 2 to 0 handicap served to spur the Hawks. At 17:32 their spirited endeavors were rewarded by a goal which climaxed one of the most intensive onslaughts of the season. Brydson, Gottselig, Trudell and Seibert peppered Goalie Thompson with shot after shot and the Bruins just couldn't clear the rubber. Finally Seibert, Gottselig and Brydson pounded away off Thompson's toes until Brydson scored, the other two getting assists.

DETROIT DEFEATS CARDS, 16-7, AND REMAINS IN RACE

Two Dashes, Field Goal Account for Points.

of 169 yards against Detroit's 192. Detroit gained 191 yards from rushing and one yard on its only completed forward, a shovel pass, Clark to Caddel. Detroit led in first downs, ten to five. Each team intercepted three passes.

Lions Go to Work Early.

The victory preserved Detroit's mathematical chance of sharing in the western division title. The Cardinals were eliminated as a factor in the race by the defeat, their fourth against five victories, except as the medium which will decide the Bears' position in the final standings when the two close the season on Dec. 5 at Wrigley field.

Nothing of consequence developed before the Lions established a lead with startling suddenness early in the first period. There had been an exchange of punts which ended when Russell intercepted Clark's pass on the Cardinals' 36 yard line.

Coffee, attempting to pass on first down, faded back to the 23 yard line where Ebding, the Lions' right end, trapped him. Ebding's vicious tackle jarred the ball out of Coffee's hand. Klewicki, the left end, charging in to help Ebding, caught the ball as it bounced off the ground and sped on twenty-three yards to a touchdown. Monahan added the extra point by placement.

May Injured; Goes Out.

Bill May, the Cardinals' first string quarter back, returned the kickoff fourteen yards to the Cardinals' 21 yard line, where he was dumped hard by a corps of Lions. He suffered a dislocated elbow when thrown on the frozen field and was replaced by Pangle.

Caddel, Clark and Gutowsky made three first downs in three plays after the Cardinals had given up the ball on a punt. Caddel went fourteen yards on a wide reverse, Clark got eleven outside the Cardinals' left tackle, and Gutowsky spun inside right tackle for fourteen. The drive bogged down after advancing forty yards to the Cadinals' 40 yard line and Huffman went back to punt. His kick partially was blocked and went out of bounds on the Cardinals' 29 yard line, but the Cardinals were offside. Huffman was not molested on his next attempt, but it also went out of bounds on the Cardinals' 29 yard line.

Monahan Helps the Cause.

The Lions put on another short drive late in the second period to set up Monahan's field goal. Grosvenor fumbled a poor pass from center. Pangle apparently recovered, but let the ball slip out of his hands and after half a dozen Lions had touched the ball, Emerson finally captured it twenty yards down the field on the Cardinals' 33 yard line. Huffman and Shepherd moved it down to the 22 yard line, from where Cardwell cut inside the Cardinals' right tackle on a reverse, cut back to his left and went sixteen yards to the 6 yard line.

The Cardinals braced here and threw Cardwell back five yards. Huffman passed to Morse on second down, but Morse was out of the end zone when he caught the ball. After Huffman had failed to gain, Shepherd went back to place kick from the 17 yard line on the fourth down. His kick was blocked, but the Cardinals were offside. Monahan then replaced Wagner at guard and kicked from five yards nearer the goal, making the score 10 to 0.

Rest Helps Cardinals.

The Cardinals were a different team in the second half and offered more spirited opposition, although they fell farther behind on Shepherd's 45 yard sprint with Coffee's pass. The Lions made the first threat of the period when Gutowsky batted Russell's pass and Huffman took it on the fly to complete the interception on the Lions' 47 yard line. Gutowsky, Caddell and Shepherd moved it down to the Cardinals' 24 yard line on six plays, an advance of twenty-nine yards. Shepherd's attempted field goal from the 36 yard line went wide of the posts for a touchback.

An exchange of punts followed and wound up with Russell returning Huffman's kick twenty yards to the Lions' 48 yard line. The Cardinals opened up their pass attack here and Coffee threw one to Tinsley for seventeen yards on the first play, making it first down on the 31 yard line. Russell's pass was too far for Tinsley. On the next play he again passed to Tinsley. The former Louisiana State star eluded the Lions' secondary and raced to the goal line, where he slipped on the frozen surface just as the ball arrived. He attempted to make the catch as he was falling, but it rolled out of his arms for a touchback, giving the Lions the ball.

Lions Forced to Punt.

Little progress was possible against the Cardinals' inspired defense and Huffman punted out of bounds on the Cards' 21 yard line. After Coffee had made eight yards and Pangle two for a first down Shepherd grabbed Grosvenor's first down pass and returned for the touchdown. His attempt to placekick the extra point was wide.

The Cardinals' touchdown in the fourth period was set up by Volok's interception of Shepherd's pass on the Cardinals' 24 yard line. Receivers Parker and Reed dropped Coffee's first two passes. On third down Coffee fired one to Smith for a thirty-one yard gain. When the Lions closed in on Smith near the sidelines he threw a short lateral to Reed, who burst out of the pack and went forty-five yards for the score. Cardwell gained rapidly on the little half back, but Reed eluded his lunge on the 20 yard line by cutting toward the center of the field. Smith added the extra point.

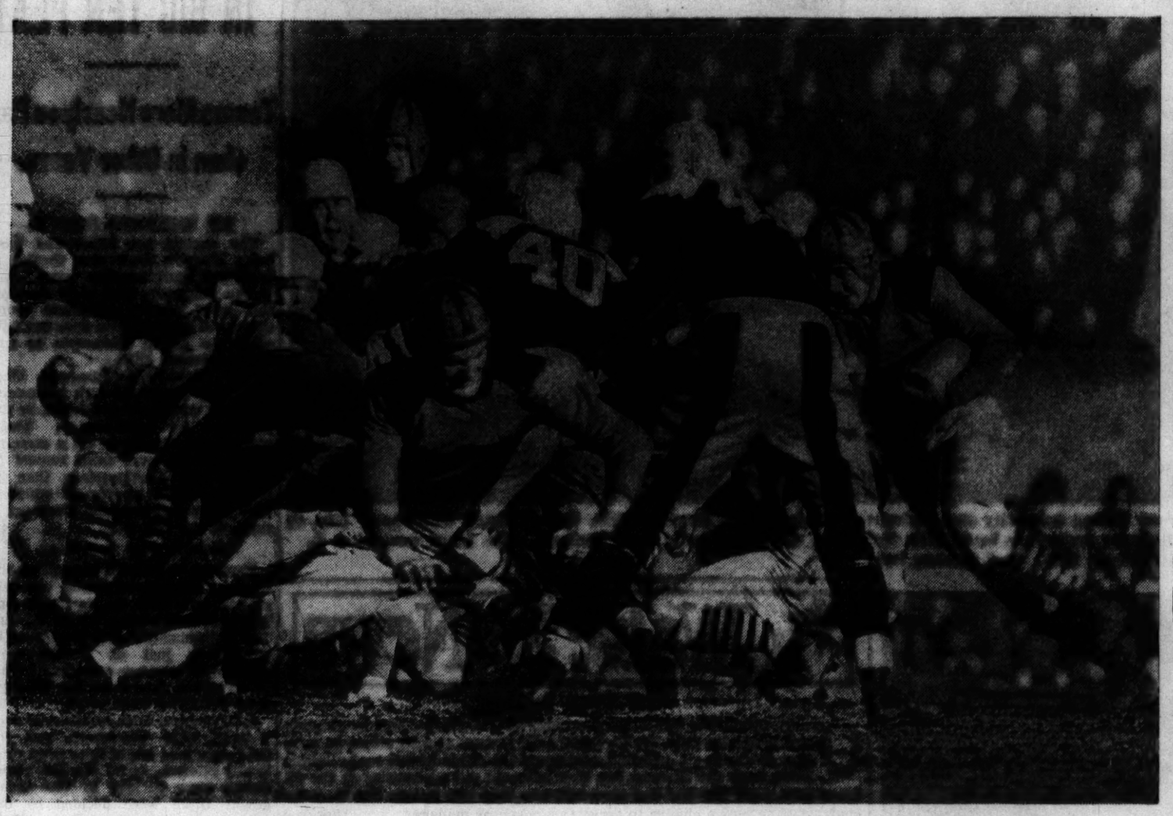
St. George Line Asserts Itself in Catholic Final



A hard charging St. George line is shown stopping Full Back Martin of Leo High school without a gain in first quarter of Catholic league final yesterday at Soldiers' field. Leo won, 6 to 0, and earned right to play Austin in annual Christmas benefit game Saturday. Leo scored its winning touchdown in third quarter. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Leo Conquers St. George, 6-0; Galvin Scores

fied by an offside penalty against St. George. Leys' next effort was fielded by Galvin on the St. George 49, whereat he slipped. After three futile thrusts at the line, Galvin kicked out of bounds on the St. George 24. McGurn and Salerno were subdued, and Leys punted to Galvin, who again was lacking in footing, slipping on his 45 yard line.

Here Leo made the first appreciable progress of the game. Galvin began it by flinging a pass to Daley, who traveled to the 30 yard line before he was dropped. Martin and Daley picked up seven yards in two plays, after which McLaughlin made it a yard to go. On fourth down, however, Galvin once more slipped and St. George took the ball on its 23 yard line as the first quarter ended.

Punt Goes Out on 4 Yard Line.

After the Dragons had failed to gain, Leys punted to the 44 yard line where Seng downed it. A pass, Galvin to Martin, nearly succeeded when Martin eluded McGurn, but he could not quite reach the ball. Galvin eventually got away a fine kick which went out of bounds on the St. George 4 yard line. On second down McGurn narrowly escaped being dropped for a safety, but he managed to reach the 1 yard line.

Leys punted, but the play was recalled and St. George given the ball on its 6 yard line on an offside penalty. Here Jim McPartland, Salerno, and Leys smashed out two amazing first downs, each being consummated on fourth down and one from a kick formation. Leys finally kicked to Galvin, who fumbled the ball, Ray Shannon recovering for St. George on the Leo 45 yard line. The end of the half found McLaughlin attempting a pass to Galvin, which just missed completion.

Galvin Gallops.

Galvin kicked off to Jim McPartland at the start of the second half. He returned fifteen yards to his own 25 yard line. The Evanston backs were halted quite effectively, and Leys finally punted to Galvin, who swept around his left end and dashed down the east side lines, unmolested, for his fifty-three yard touchdown run. His placekick of the extra point was wide to the right.

Play was almost entirely in St. George territory for the remainder of the third quarter, the only development being the north siders' loss of Leys, who was injured in a line play. He was replaced by Weiland. The Evanston lads gained a first down at their 31 yard line as the third period ended.

Early in the last quarter Jim McPartland, who had taken over Leys' punting chore, kicked out of bounds on the Leo 47 yard line. Galvin collected four yards at right tackle, McLaughlin got one, and then Galvin passed to Arneberg, who made a grand one-handed catch on the St. George 39 yard line. Galvin next tossed to Martin, who took the ball up to the north siders' 14 yard line. On two plays Galvin drove through for a first down on the 4 yard mark, but he was spilled for a three yard loss on the next play. Two more passes were batted down and St. George finally took the ball on its 7 yard line.

Passes Work, and They Don't Work.

Two passes were involved in potential touchdown plays, each of them coming to naught. One, a toss from Galvin to Daley, who scampered thirty-eight yards over the goal line, was ruled incomplete after Daley had been called out of bounds on the reception. Shortly after, St. George took the ball and commenced a flurry of passes, one of which found Salerno taking a toss from Jim McPartland, and being headed for a touchdown, only to be called back for having touched the out of bounds line at the 49 yard mark.

The end of the game saw Galvin punting neatly to the St. George 3 yard line. McPartland tried two brave passes, both of them incomplete. Then Salerno, finding no receiver, dashed up to the 18 yard line for a first down, but another pass found the end of the game waiting.

Rodak Fights Milling; Eyes Title Chance

Leo Rodak, south side featherweight championship aspirant, tonight will continue his bid for a bout with Champion Henry Armstrong in a ten rounder against Varias Milling at Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street. The show will be the 128th held under the joint auspices of Irving Schoenwald and Jack Begun since June, 1935.

Two months of rest will give the cagey Rodak a physical advantage over his aggressive foe from the Philippine Islands. In the same span Milling went through three bruising battles, two with Al Nettlow, Catholic Youth organization lightweight, and the other with Tommy Speigal, Uniontown, Pa., junior lightweight.

Tony Zale, Gary middleweight, will seek to avenge a previous defeat by Nate Bolden of the south side in a five round secondary feature. Bouts at four rounds match Steve Karas with Jimmy La Marr, William Joyce with Ray Harris, and George White with Joey Richards.

Bobby Bruns, Oak Park heavyweight, and Lou [Sun] Jennings will meet in the windup bout of the wrestling show tonight at White City, 63d street and South Park avenue. Jennings has been substituted for Zack Malkov. Preliminary matches will involve Dorv Roche and Jack Conley, Jack Claybourn and Alex Kaffner, Lou Goldberg and Al Wescott, and Jose Rodriquez and Joe Orawiec. Claybourn and Kaffner are colored. . . . Sidney Ray, Portage park lightweight, and Joe Law of Wallace's south side gymnasium will meet in a five round amateur headliner this evening at Northwest gymnasium, 3968 Milwaukee avenue. F. M.

WHO'LL GET THAT ROSE BOWL BID? CONSIDER THREE

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 21.—(AP)—The football season in the far west, all over but the final exultant shouts, found University of California on the Coast conference throne today, pondering the selection of a suitable opponent for the Rose Bowl game on New Year's day.

The who's who of eastern gridirons [no team west of the Mississippi river is expected to get the invitation] indicated Fordham's Rams, the University of Alabama Crimson Tide, and Pittsburgh's Panthers would be considered.

TORONTO ADDS TO RED WINGS' MISERY, 5 TO 0

Faltering Detroit Loses Fourth Game.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Toronto's high scoring Maple Leafs handed the faltering Detroit Red Wings their fourth defeat of the National Hocky league season tonight, shutting out last year's champions, 5 to 0, before 13,293.

The Leafs scored first on Syl Apps' goal just before the first period ended and banged home three more goals in the second to turn the game into a rout. Their final goal was poked into the net by the Detroit goalie, Norm Smith, who lost sight of the puck when it lodged behind him, and backed it past the goal mouth. Bill Thoms got credit for the score.

Minnesota Is Best; Upsets Few in Big 10

defeated an opponent before], and Purdue's defeat of Indiana [it was time to change residence of the Old Oaken Bucket, and Purdue, because of its misfortunes the last two years, had the sympathy of the conference].

The final set of conference games provided no surprises except in Purdue's conquest of Indiana, a contest which tentatively had been awarded Indiana on the basis of its victory over Ohio State and its 6 to 0 defeat by Minnesota. Michigan was overmatched against Ohio State and lost, 21 to 0. Wisconsin made a splendid fight against Minnesota, but lost, 13 to 6. Illinois whipped Chicago decisively, and so the Maroons' hope of winning at least one conference game faded.

Dismal Season for Iowa.

Iowa, with no particular incentive, finished a dismal season by losing to Nebraska, 28 to 0. The outstanding battle Saturday, except for the importance of Minnesota's victory that brought the title to Minneapolis after a year's lapse, was between Northwestern and Notre Dame.

Notre Dame's one touchdown, made on a scoring pattern for every game since the scoreless tie with Illinois, was sufficient to whip the Wildcats. Chuck Sweeney's recovery of a blocked kick provided the touchdown. Alec Shellogg blocked Bernie Jefferson's punt to furnish Sweeney with his third stellar rôle of the season. It was Sweeney who tackled a Navy man for the safety that defeated the Middies, and Sweeney blocked Minnesota's try for the extra point to furnish the Irish with their 7 to 6 conquest of the new Western conference champion.

Northwestern's early drive ended with a fumble and Notre Dame's closing threats were stopped by the Wildcat line. So one break, the blocked kick, a duplicate of other failures by Jefferson this year, decided the issue.

Blocking kicks, however, has been the particular penchant of Ralph Heikkinen, Michigan guard, who stopped two tries for points by Ohio State Saturday and brought his season's total to five blocked kicks.

Owls Suffer First Defeat.

Results in the east Saturday did not follow the pattern of results anticipated. Villanova whipped Temple, 33 to 0, for the Owls' first defeat, although they previously had engaged in four scoreless ties. Most surprising was Princeton's defeat of Navy, 26 to 6, and most important was Harvard's conquest of Yale, 13 to 6, which gave the Crimson the championship of the Big Three—Yale, Princeton, and Harvard—and left Dartmouth as undisputed leader of the so-called Ivy league. Saturday the Big Green concluded its campaign with a 27 to 0 victory over Columbia.

Fordham, which still is hoping for an invitation to compete in the Rose bowl, defeated St. Mary's of California, 6 to 0, and demonstrated a mastery of football more thorough than this score. Pittsburgh, Fordham's rival, had no difficulty against Penn State. Colgate made partial amends for an indifferent season by once more whipping Syracuse, 7 to 0.

California Clinches Title.

Texas Christian moved up to tie for the lead in the Southwest conference race by defeating Rice, 7 to 2. Each team now has won two games and lost one, but Texas Christian has played two ties compared to one for Rice. Baylor's victory over Loyola of Los Angeles and Southern Methodist's conquest of California [Los Angeles] provided an argument for the excellence of the caliber of competition in that section.

California clinched the Pacific coast title, its first since 1928, by defeating Stanford, 13 to 0. California now will have the honor of representing the far west in the New Year's post season Rose Bowl game.

MIDGETS CRASH IN ARMORY RACES; RITTER TRIUMPHS

One driver was seriously hurt, a second painfully bruised, and five others shaken up last night in midget auto racing accidents at the 124th Feld Artillery armory. Johnny Ritter of Detroit climaxed a night of hectic driving by winning the 30 lap feature windup by less than a foot from Marshall Lewis of Los Angeles.

Ritter, who had set two marks in the qualifying trials led from start to finish in taking the feature in the record time of six minutes 34.41 seconds.

The accidents happened in the first elimination race for class B cars and in the class A handicap race. Harry Lewis of Chicago, a veteran driver, was seriously bruised and cut about the neck and head in one of the smashups. He was taken to the hospital for X-rays. Fred Tegtmeier suffered a painfully bruised right arm and hands in the same crackup.

Five of the leading indoor drivers were involved in the second accident. All were badly shaken up but resumed racing. They were Jimmy Snyder, Ray Richards, Emil Andres, Ted Duncan, and Tony Willman.

Boat Upsets; 2 Get Ducking in Icy Lake

In the face of a below freezing north wind, Frostbite dinghy yachtsmen sailed six races in Belmont harbor yesterday. The series was sponsored by the Chicago chapter of the North American Dinghy association.

Five dinghies, each with a skipper and crew, participated in the windward and leeward contests. Winners were Leeds Mitchell Jr.; Russell Moon, who was first to finish three events, Grover Steffen, and Hunt R. Schlagel. The course was a half mile to the north end of the harbor, to windward, and returning with the wind.

At the windward buoy in the preliminary race, two blue-sailed class D dinghies were leading the fleet. Leeds Mitchell Jr. was piloting one and Grover Steffen and Lockwood Pirie the other. Steffen and Pirie tacked too close to the beach, and ran aground. A puff of wind struck the dinghy's sail.

It heeled over and capsized, Steffen and Pirie falling into the icy water. They managed to pull the boat to the beach and empty it, however, and shove off again. Meantime, Russell Moon and Henry Rubinkam had sailed ahead of Leeds Mitchell. Steffen and Pirie brought their craft across the finish line in third place. After drying out clothes and canvas, they joined the fleet in the fourth event and won.

DETROIT PASSING BARRAGE BEATS CREIGHTON, 48-7

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 21.—(AP)—A passing attack that netted five touchdowns and a running offensive that brought two more gave the University of Detroit a 48 to 7 victory over Creighton university today before 6,000.

Detroit required four and a half minutes to score its first touchdown, Palumbo passing twice—once to Larson and then to Farkas on the goal line for the score. Four minutes later he passed to Filiatraut for another.

Grand and Glorious.

When the frost is on the pumpkin
And the fodder's in the shock,
And the turnstiles have stopped clicking,
And the wolves no longer knock—
When the wintry winds are blowing
And zero nips your ears,
And the snow is drifting skyward,
And Christmas spirit nears;
And the baseball magnates gather
And the experts make the deals,
And the dear old public grumbles
And dub all officials "heels,"
It's a grand and glorious feeling,
And indeed it's some surprise,
When you wake up in the morning
And this item meets your eyes,
"Cubs and Sox off for camp."

CENTRAL COLLEGE RUNNERS BATTLE FOR TITLE TODAY

East Lansing, Mich., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Eighty-five runners representing fourteen colleges and universities in the middle west will compete here tomorrow morning over the Michigan State college cross-country course at the twelfth annual central intercollegiate cross-country run.

Twelve schools have full teams entered. Oklahoma and Michigan Normal will be represented by individual entries. Probably the greatest threat to Michigan State supremacy will be the Indiana team, led by Tom Deckard. It was Indiana that early this season handed Michigan State its only defeat. State then went on and last week won the I. C. 4-A title for the fifth time and took permanent possession of the trophy at New York City.

★ THE GOLDEN GATE BRIDGE, SPANNING SAN FRANCISCO BAY, IS THE LARGEST OF ITS TYPE IN THE WORLD. THE CHOICE CREAMERY BUTTER SERVED IN THOMPSON'S RESTAURANTS LAST YEAR WOULD PROVIDE ENOUGH HALF POUND CARTONS TO PAVE A ROADWAY 16 FEET WIDE ITS ENTIRE LENGTH.

★ THE BUTTER SERVED IN THOMPSON'S RESTAURANTS LAST YEAR WEIGHED TWICE AS MUCH AS THE WORLD-FAMOUS STATUE OF LIBERTY.

★ TO MAKE THE CREAMERY BUTTER SERVED IN THOMPSON'S RESTAURANTS EVERY DAY LAST YEAR REQUIRED ALL THE MILK PRODUCED BY MORE THAN 4100 AVERAGE COWS.

★ Last year Thompson's 114 Restaurants in 37 cities served 901,471 pounds highest quality creamery butter. The Golden Gate Bridge is more than one and two-thirds miles long, (8940 feet.) The world-famous Statue of Liberty in New York Harbor (exclusive of foundation) weighs 450,000 pounds. Since it takes 100 pounds of milk to make 4.2 pounds of butter, 4106 cows (at 5-year U. S. average 14.28 lbs. per day) would be required to produce the 21,463,595 lbs. (9,983,068 quarts) of milk to make all the butter consumed in Thompson's Restaurants in 1936.

SHUN WALLY, BRITAIN ORDERS ITS DUCHESSES

Must Reject Invitations When She's a Guest.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 21.—British duchesses who, according to the Buckingham palace view, would take social precedence over the duchess of Windsor, have been ordered by court officials, it was stated tonight, to boycott any function which the duchess of Windsor might attend.

Instructions to decline invitations when the duchess of Windsor is to be present were issued ostensibly with the idea of avoiding unpleasantness or a possible clash over social standing.

In Germany during the Windsors' social welfare tour, it was recalled in court circles here, the duchess was addressed more than once as "royal highness."

Precedence Set by Ruling.

In the eyes of Buckingham palace, the duchess of Windsor, although the wife of former King Edward VIII. of Great Britain, is not "royal" and should be referred to merely as "her grace." All royal duchesses, including the duchesses of Kent and Gloucester, the latter a "commoner" before her marriage, would take precedence over the duchess of Windsor according to the ruling published in the London Gazette, the official government organ, last May 28.

Edward, however, is reported to have determined that on all occasions his wife should rank as "her royal highness."

The battle over social precedence is said to be one of the main reasons why he has not attempted to return to England since his abdication last December.

Steal Show at Race Track.

PARIS, Nov. 21.—(AP)—The duke and duchess of Windsor today stole the show at the Auteuil race track—parade ground of leaders of fashion and society. The usual high spot of the Sunday races is the presence of the Parisian arbiters of style, but the Windsors drew the crowd's attention from every one else.

Accompanied by Mrs. Constance Coolidge of Boston, the couple were escorted to their box by Count de Cambaceres, president of the Steeplechase Society of France.

In the evening they were guests at a dinner given by United States Ambassador William C. Bullitt in the embassy residence in honor of Mrs. Joseph Beck, wife of the Polish foreign minister.

WRITES BAGPIPE TUNE TO CONSOLE WINDSOR IN EXILE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 20.—A bagpipe march, the "Bonnie Hoose o'Windsor," has been written by one of the duke of Windsor's favorite pipers and a copy is being sent him in Paris to try on his own bagpipes. Pipe Major G. D. Taylor is the composer. It was he who first played in public the "Mallorca" pipe march which the duke, former King Edward VIII. of England, wrote when prince of Wales. Taylor is an admirer of the duke and, knowing Edward's fondness for pipe music, decided to compose a tune and send it to him.

Varty, who was 57 years old, was an official for seventeen years of the Sycamore National bank.

STOCK MARKET SETBACK WORST IN TWO MONTHS

Week's Losses Range to $11 a Share.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 21.—[Special.]—The stock market last week experienced its sharpest decline since the week ended Sept. 11. Losses in leading shares ranged to 11 points or more. Of the fifteen most active stocks none recorded a gain.

On Monday the list reached its highest point just before President Roosevelt delivered his message to the special session of congress. Except for minor rallies the market moved steadily downward thereafter with the heavy industries bearing the brunt of the selling.

Modest Rally on Saturday.

Friday the list broke wide open and the liquidation carried over to the early stages of Saturday's short session which brought the lowest point of the week. The market then rallied modestly.

For the week, as measured by the Dow-Jones averages, the setback in 30 industrial issues amounted to 14.92 points. Twenty rails dropped 4.13 points and 20 utilities lost 2.53. In the six days of trading 137 issues touched new lows for the year, many of them so-called blue ribbon stocks.

Volume for the week was 7,499,970 shares. Saturday's trading of 1,232,100 shares was the largest for a half day session since Oct. 24.

Watch Washington Events.

Financial circles focused their attention throughout the period on the special session of congress. Disappointment was expressed over parts of the President's message in which he refused to concede the policies of the administration were in any way responsible for the serious slump now confronting the country.

At the time the decision was made to call congress into session it was bad news to Wall street. Now, however, it is hoped something may be accomplished in the modification of restrictive laws and changes in the oppressive taxes on capital gains and undistributed surplus.

In view of the President's attitude, financial men are pinning their hopes on congress which, though it accomplished nothing last week, gave evidence it is cognizant of the serious ills besetting business.

Build Trains for Comfort of Travelers

Further details were disclosed yesterday on the interior design of the new high speed streamlined trains now being constructed by the Pullman company for the Broadway and Twentieth Century Limiteds, fast New York-Chicago trains of the Pennsylvania and New York Central railroads.

The Pullman company is building more than one hundred sleeping, lounge, and observation cars for the two trains and for other principal west and east trains of both railroads, a joint announcement by the two roads said. The new equipment is scheduled to be put in operation early next year.

Three Improved Types.

Three improved types of private room accommodations will be prominent features of the new trains, the announcement said. Two of them are improved styles of drawing rooms and compartments. The third type has been named the "roomette," an innovation in design.

In the new type of drawing room, larger space has been obtained by an extensive rearrangement and replanning. A bed folding into one end wall and running lengthwise of the car replaces the old fixed couch. In addition, a large sofa, convertible into a bed, with an upper berth, is substituted for the section seats by the windows.

Ample Space Provided.

Ample space for dressing and moving about remains after all beds are prepared for use, it was said. The drawing room made up for sleeping provides two full sized "lower" beds instead of the lower berth and couch now available in drawing rooms. By day the wall bed disappears, the upper bed is put away, and the third bed becomes a sofa. An easy chair supplements the sofa for daytime use.

Increased space also is provided in the new form of compartment. A full sized bed, running crosswise of the car, and an upper berth above the window replace the section seats in the old form of compartment. The bed converts into a sofa for day use, and an easy chair also supplements the sofa for daytime use.

Complete Private Bedroom.

The "roomette" is a complete private bedroom occupying slightly more than the space of a standard Pullman section. During the day the bed is folded back into the wall, converting the "roomette" into a sitting room.

In exterior design the new trains will present the aspect of long metallic tubes.

World Is Turning to U. S. for Its Supply of Wheat

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Unfavorable crop developments in Argentina have improved prospects for the United States being called upon to supply a large share of the world's wheat needs this season. That the Argentine crop prospects have been materially changed by frost damage is now definitely established, although the extent of the loss is still uncertain.

It is estimated that Argentina's wheat production this year will not exceed 200 million bushels, of which approximately half will be needed to meet home requirements, leaving an export surplus of about 100 million bushels. Last season the Argentine wheat yield totaled 247 million bushels.

This country has wheat to sell and prevailing prices in Chicago are at a favorable export ratio to prices prevailing in Liverpool and other markets.

Importing Countries Delay.

Importing countries have held their purchases to a minimum pending the outcome of the crops in the southern hemisphere. The first frost scare in Argentina caused an immediate increase in the demand for American wheat, and grain men are now more optimistic over export prospects than they have been for several weeks.

The United States department of agriculture predicts this country will sell about 95 million bushels of wheat abroad this year. The figure looked high to most observers a few weeks ago, but it now appears possible of realization.

Southern hemisphere wheat will not begin to move into the world market until about Feb. 1. Meanwhile, shipments from Russia and the Balkan countries are falling, leaving the United States in a favorable position to increase sales to Europe.

Prices Show Improvement.

The improved export prospects have been reflected in the trend of prices in the Chicago market in the last week. The range of prices on grain futures last week follows:

CHICAGO TRADE IMPROVES WITH COLD WEATHER

Snow and cold weather last week gave an impetus to Chicago retail trade, the Chicago Association of Commerce reported yesterday. Long delayed purchases of heavy clothing and other winter needs took up some of the slack that has been evident in recent years.

Wholesalers reported a slight upward trend in demand for last minute stocks of holiday merchandise. Luxury goods are still lagging.

STEEL OUTPUT SAGS; BELIEVED NEAR BOTTOM

Rate Falls to 35 Pct. of Capacity.

Steel plant operations last week fell 4 points to 35 per cent of ingot capacity, the magazine Steel reported yesterday. The decline brought indications "to support a belief that the bottom practically had been reached," the magazine said, and it appears that "further recessions in buying and production will be small."

The rate at Pittsburgh advanced 4 points to 36 per cent, and Cincinnati gained 10 points to 25 per cent. Birmingham and New England were unchanged at 54 and 30 per cent, respectively. All other steel making centers showed declines, with Chicago down 7.5 points to 27.5 per cent, eastern Pennsylvania down 3 points to 35 per cent, Youngstown, 1 point lower at 42 per cent; Wheeling, off 11 points to 43 per cent; Cleveland, 20 points lower at 15 per cent; Buffalo, 4.5 points lower at 28 per cent; St. Louis, off 18 points at 15 per cent, and Detroit, 11 points lower at 71 per cent of capacity.

Scrap Prices Decline Further.

Scrap prices continued their decline last week, Steel's composite price dropping 33 cents to $13.08 a

More on Securities Regulation.

In May, 1936, congress passed a law amending the securities exchange act of 1934 so as to facilitate trading in unlisted securities. The act was intended to provide adequate provision for all parties involved in the transaction.

Applications to trade in unlisted securities must be made to the securities and exchange commission, which decides whether such trading is in the public interest, and whether all requirements have been met by the applicant. If the commission considers it necessary for the protection of investors it may suspend unlisted trading privileges in whole or in part or for any or all classes of securities for a period not exceeding 12 months.

The 1936 regulation further amended the securities exchange act of 1934 to allow only registered brokers or dealers to use, with a few exceptions, any instrumentality or interstate commerce to induce the purchase or sale of securities.

All issuers of securities are required to file with the SEC any information the commission considers necessary to protect the public. Penalties are imposed for failure to comply with these regulations.

FARM PRODUCTS BOUGHT ABROAD EXCEED SALES

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21.—(AP)—The bureau of agricultural economics reported today that during the 1937 fiscal year ended last June 30 American farmers, for probably the first time in history, came out on the short end of international trading in agricultural products. It said American agricultural products sold abroad were valued at $733,000,000, while "competitive" farm products brought into this country were valued at $868,000,000.

Imports exceeded exports of "competitive" products by 18 per cent. During 1936 sales abroad exceeded purchases by 16 per cent. Agricultural department economists attributed the decline to "the cumulative influence of short crops" in recent drouth years.

American purchases of foreign noncompetitive and competitive farm products totaled $2,894,000,000 during the year, compared with sales of $733,000,000, the bureau said. All purchases abroad in 1936 totaled $2,208,000,000.

GRAIN FUTURES TRADING RISES 51%, CEA REPORTS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Trading in grain futures on all contract markets in the United States increased 51 per cent during the fiscal year ending June 30 over the previous fiscal year, according to the annual report of the commodity exchange administration, made public today.

Volume was 16,577,003,000 bushels, compared with 11,006,911,000 bushels during the previous year, the report said. Trading in wheat futures accounted for 70 per cent of all trading and corn transactions amounted to 18 per cent of the total.

Of the total volume 88 per cent, or 14,631,385,000 bushels, was transacted through the Chicago Board of Trade, according to the report.

American Rolling Mill.

Investors' Guide: Kindly provide information concerning American Rolling Mill company.—F. G. T.

Answer: Ranking as eighth largest steel producer in the United States, this company concentrates its activities on the manufacture of high quality steel and iron sheets and light plates.

Patents on a superior process for continuous rolling of ingots into finished strips, sheets, and light plates furnish a supplemental source of income, particularly when the steel mill activities are at a high rate.

The automobile industry, taking about one-fifth of output, is the company's largest customer. Others include the road construction, refrigerator, electrical equipment, building, and steel jobbing industries.

Sharply increased demand for steel sheets from the automobile and other industries has boosted earnings to record levels in the last two years. Although net income in the third quarter this year continued ahead of that a year earlier, per share earnings were down because of the increased amount of stock outstanding. Sharply decreased operating rates in the steel industry inject uncertainty into the outlook.

Net income for the first nine months of this year was $9,289,000, or $3.09 per common share, compared with $4,369,000, or $1.94 a share in the first nine months of 1936. The record since the depression low:

	Sales.	Net inc.	Inc. per com. sh.
1936	$101,463,000	$6,442,000	$2.26

The amount of net income [after bond interest] and per share earnings on common stock have been affected by revamping of capital structure. Common stock was increased from 1,854,150 shares to 2,868,535 shares by conversion of debentures during 1936. Further changes this year arose from sale of 450,000 shares of $100 par 4½ per cent convertible preferred stock and use of proceeds to provide capital for plant expansion and to retire $2,000,000 of old preferred stock and $22,000,000 of debentures. This left funded debt of $3,800,000.

After being omitted three and one-half years, common dividends were resumed late in 1935 and continued on a regular 30 cent quarterly basis until a 50 cent payment on Oct. 15, 1937. An extra of 40 cents will be paid Dec. 15 to holders of record Nov. 15. A 75 cent extra was paid in 1936.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

Criticize Corn Loans

November 21, 1937.

CRITICISM of the federal government's new corn loan program is increasing among farmers. Even corn growers who qualified for the loan by planting crops according to the government's plan this year are in many instances chafing under the AAA yoke. They are shaking their heads at the whole corn loan scheme. Many of them are agreeing with criticisms coming from those who are not qualified and did not want to qualify because it meant submission to Washington regimentarians.

Thousands of them refused to turn over the running of their cropping plans to some one else for a few dole dollars given out by the Agricultural Adjustment administration. Therefore these farmers are not qualified to receive corn loans.

Exceed Federal Rules.

Farm owners and operators who did not come in under the plan have in many cases gone far ahead of the cropping plans laid down by the government. But they refused to be wound up in the red tape to earn, as the administration's agents phrase it, a few dollars. Those who fully cooperated are getting in the neighborhood of $200 on a 160 acre farm for following some of the government's suggestions, including the planting of alfalfa, clover or some other legume, sowing grass mixtures, planting trees, or applying limestone or rock phosphate. They are collecting the money and thereby qualifying for corn loans. Thousands of others did as much or more but did not ask for a government check. Now they could not get a corn loan check if they wanted it.

Chief among the farmers' adverse criticisms of the corn loan program are:

1. The limit of a maximum of 50 cents a bushel is too low for corn with a moisture content not in excess of 14½ per cent. Many farmers contend that the loan on such corn should be at least 60 cents a bushel. The loan rates are the equivalent of 50 cents to 44 cents a bushel of corn as determined by cubic content of the cribs, depending upon the moisture content.

2. Measurement of the moisture content is not necessary. Previous government loans were made on marketable corn. This year for the first time corn samples must be sent to central laboratories for moisture tests.

Object to Moisture Rule.

3. Comparatively few farmers have corn that would qualify for a loan of 50 cents a bushel because most of it contains more than 14½ per cent moisture. Reports indicate that the moisture in much of the corn in Illinois is 18 and 19 per cent and in some cases up to 30 per cent. Records show that Iowa corn usually averages about 20 per cent moisture during November, December, January and February.

4. The loan plan is pegging the price of corn, for all practical purposes, at several cents a bushel under the government's maximum loan of 50 cents a bushel, experts point out. The government will not loan money on corn having a moisture content in excess of 20½ per cent. A farmer with corn containing that much moisture would get only 44 cents a bushel, or $440 on 1,000 bushels.

5. Limiting the loan to the farmers who have been willing to follow the Washington planners' farming program this year will prevent the corn loan plan from fully meeting its objective to provide "a more orderly system of marketing and prevent the glutting of corn markets early in the marketing season when corn prices usually are low."

6. The government is late in getting the corn loan program under way. Much of this year's corn crop will have been fed or sold to meet current needs before the corn loan money is transferred to farmers. The money will not be available until the first of December.

HOPE TO FIX SOFT COAL PRICE SCALE BY THANKSGIVING

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Members of the national bituminous coal commission expressed hope tonight minimum prices for the sale of soft coal may be announced "sometime this week." They previously had discussed two possible dates for the completion of the task of basing minimum prices on production and distribution costs.

One tentative date was "about Thanksgiving," the other Dec. 1. If the prices are completed "by Thanksgiving," the figures, which must be observed by all producers of bituminous coal, will become effective near the middle of December.

U. S. WILL PRESS CLAIMS AGAINST SOVIET RUSSIA

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Roland S. Morris, chairman of the executive committee of the Association of American Creditors of Russia, announced today he had been informed that the state department would continue to press claims against the soviet for destruction and confiscation of American property in Russia.

Lehigh Valley Coal Asks Note Holders for Extension

New York, Nov. 21.—(AP)—The Lehigh Valley Coal company today proposed to holders of certain notes maturing Jan. 1 a plan for extension of maturity for 5 years at 6 per cent interest. The issue involved is one of five year secured 6 per cent notes. Conditions now prevailing make it impossible for the company to provide sufficient cash for payment at maturity, the proposal said.

Merchants National to Pay $85,000 in Yule Deposits

Approximately $85,000, or an average of $46.85 per person, will be paid to Christmas savings depositors of the Merchants National bank, Madison street and Kedzie avenue, on Dec. 1, George R. Boyles, president, announced yesterday. Depositors this year totaled 1,814.

General Insurance Firm Changes Corporate Name

Bartholomay-Darling company, general insurance firm, will change its corporate name today to Bartholomay-Darling-Clarkson company, in recognition of John L. Clarkson, who since 1926 has been a vice president of the company.

U. S. BONDS RISE ON BUYING BY RESERVE BANK

New York, Nov. 21.—(AP)—With the federal reserve bank reported buying in the open market, United States government loans thrust forward last week in contrast with a faltering corporate bond market. Turnover was light most of the week.

Higher priced corporate issues held fairly even, but secondary liens were under steady pressure. The carrier group stumbled badly, although a late rally on Saturday helped to erase some of the earlier losses. Utility and industrial obligations lacked support throughout most of the period, although they braced at the end.

Foreign dollar bonds followed an irregular course.

Eastern Air Lines Trafic Rises 11 Pct. in October

Eastern Air Lines reported yesterday that October passenger trafic totaled approximately 11,700 persons, a gain of 11 per cent over October, 1936, and the largest volume for the month in the company's history.

210,240 Placed in Jobs by U. S. During October

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—The United States employment services placed 210,240 applicants in jobs with private employers during October, Secretary of Labor Perkins announced today. Including private places, a total of 303,286 jobs were filled. While this marked an advance of 21.2 per cent over October a year ago it was a drop of 12.3 per cent under the September figures. In each of the three preceding years October showed a gain over September.

ton, which is $9 below the high mark set in April.

Last week's rise in operations in the Pittsburgh district was the result of an accumulation of small orders. Chicago mills are expected to show a small gain in operations this week, due to the same cause, according to the magazine.

"A canvass by steel producers has revealed that in many instances steel consuming companies are operating at rates close to those of last spring, using stocks accumulated through midyear and refraining from further buying until the general situation has cleared," Steel said. "It is apparent that consumers have more steel in stock than had been realized, and this is responsible in part for the present derth of buying.

Buying at Lower Rate.

"Most steel producers find buying this month is at a lower rate than in October, but in most cases consumers require prompt delivery. Continued absence of automobile builders from the market is an important factor in present dullness."

Additional business from oil companies is in prospect, according to the trade journal. Two pipe lines are being considered. Inquiry for a tanker requiring 4,000 tons is expected soon.

Rail buying has become promising, despite the unfavorable financial situation of the railroads. Some locomotive inquiries have been made.

OUR NEW PRODUCT

never shown anywhere prior to this month unquestionably is destined to carve its own exclusive place in the history of business development, as other Electrolux products have done before. Its introduction along advanced lines makes available a number of profitable, permanent opportunities.

Enjoying the utmost backing of one of the strongest, healthiest corporations to be found, the biggest asset is the name already associated with it. The history of business shows the way to make money is with men who are practical, successful, of proved integrity and genuine creative power—men both interested and able to help start others of good character.

No better way to learn successfully how to sell could be had in any manner than in the helpful associations to be gained with these men now. They representi, we believe, the finest in specialty selling. Such men locally as E. J. Adams, once a teacher, who drew $2,971.23 his first full year, and $4,171.75 the next year, commissions, bonus; E. J. Burnham, a former broker, earning $3,125.90 his first full year [1936]; Rudo Herschend, former engineer, averaged only about $40 a week at first, but last year earned $4,237.14

Girl, 15, Tells of Love Affair After Young Cadet Ends Life in Police Chase—Chicago Shivers in Cold

YOUNG CADET KILLS SELF IN POLICE CHASE; SWEETHEART TELLS OF THEIR LOVE—Warren Sinclair Stanley, 17, Chicago cosmetic manufacturer's son, who shot himself in Berwyn early yesterday after crash in stolen auto, and Loretta Harynek, 15, Schurz High school student. The reason for the tragedy was found in her story. She said they had been sweethearts for several years and that she falsely told him she was to become a mother. (Story on page 1.)

CHICAGO'S SHORELINE COATED WITH ICE AS TEMPERATURES DROP—Big waves on Lake Michigan top pilings with ice, making them look like giant ice cream cones, and altogether paint a frigid picture as winter sets in. This was the view yesterday at Center street. The weatherman predicted the coldest spell of the season for today. The mercury rose from 17 degrees early yesterday to 30 at noon, but then started dropping and was expected to go as low as 8 above this morning.

SCENE OF TRAGIC ENDING TO CHASE—Intersection of Harlem and Burlington avenues, Berwyn, showing how stolen car driven by Warren Stanley skidded on icy pavement and crashed backward into tree after nine mile chase. As pursuing police left their machine and approached Stanley's car afoot he shot himself. He died soon afterward.

WORLD'S SAFEST PLANE—That's claim made by American manufacturers for this "flying tricycle," so called because it has tricycle landing gears. Here it's flying over Croydon field, London. It carries two passengers.

HOTEL BUILT IN 1763 MENACED BY FLAMES—Air view as fire yesterday swept through part of Carvel hall, hotel landmark, in Annapolis, Md., near United States Naval academy. The original hotel, built in 1763, was saved, but the top floor of modern wing was destroyed. Some 100 guests escaped. The blaze raged for two hours.

LUNCHING IN COURT AT PASTOR'S MURDER TRIAL—Seats are in demand at the trial in Pittsfield, Ill., of the Rev. C. Ellsworth Newton, accused of slaying Mrs. Maybelle Kelly, a parishioner, so these spectators brought their lunch. The minister will resume his testimony today under cross-examination by the state. (Story on page 3.)
